

TOWN TAX RATE HELD AT 13 MILLS BY COUNCILMEN

Gettysburg's tax rate for 1947 will be 13 mills, the same rate as last year. The rate will be 11 mills per $1 assessed valuation for the general fund and two mills for special fund for debt purposes.

This tax rate was determined with final adoption of the 1947 budget at Monday night's meeting of the borough council at the engine house by a unanimous vote. No changes were made in the budget as tentatively adopted on February 3.

The budget total is $111,100. Estimated revenues are as follows: income from taxes, $33,100; amusement tax, $7,000; meters, $10,000; miscellaneous, $6,000; cash and bonds, $55,000. In the estimated expenditures, $30,000 is allowed for operating expenses until the tax money is received. The following amounts are set down for various departments: highway, $31,000; safety, $17,000; sewers, $15,000; water, $2,000; light, $7,000; fire, $5,000; health, $600; property, $500; miscellaneous, $3,000.

COUNCIL TOLD TOWN HAS TWO SEMINARY AVES; CHANGE ASKED

What to name one street in the borough, and how to eliminate the confusion of having two other streets with the same name, occupied the attention of borough council Monday night at the fire engine house.

There are, according to a letter received from Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, president of the Lutheran Theological seminary, two "seminary avenues" in the borough, and Dr. Wentz thinks the name of one of them ought to be changed.

In his letter, Dr. Wentz said: "Those of us who live on Seminary avenue which is located on Seminary Ridge would welcome a change in the name of the street called Seminary avenue which runs between Hay street and Buford avenue.

Strangers Confused

"Many times in the course of a year we are accosted by strangers who are looking for people living on 'Seminary avenue' and in every case we are obliged to direct them to the other street which bears that name. The avenue here on Seminary Ridge is so clearly marked 'Seminary avenue' that people cannot understand why they are not on the right street.

"This is not only inconvenient and confusing to strangers, but it is also embarrassing to citizens of

Change Date For High School Play

A change in date for the annual senior spring play at Gettysburg high school was announced today. The production had been announced for March 20 and 21 but it was made known today the dates have been changed to Wednesday and Friday nights, March 19 and 21.

Proceeds from the play, "A Case of Springtime," will go to the "Cannon-aid," school annual. Miss Ruth K. Scott is directing.

RAILROAD WILL PAY PORTION OF ST. EXTENSION

Extension of West Lincoln avenue across the tracks of the Reading railroad will cost $6,300, according to a plan submitted by railroad engineers to borough council Monday night, and of this amount, the Reading railroad wants the borough to pay $2,810. The railroad will assume the remaining $3,490. Council referred the agreement to the highway committee.

The railroad made its proposal contingent upon the closing off of the crossing known as the old Brick yard crossing 400 feet south of the proposed new crossing. Under the proposed agreement with the railroad, the borough was asked to pay half the cost of the installation of flasher signal lights, erect a barricade at the old crossing, obtain releases from property owners across the tracks, and macadamize the roadway.

May Renumber Buildings

Council referred to its highway committee a proposed ordinance for the numbering of business places and residences in the borough. The ordinance provides a $10 fine for violations.

The ordinance provides that Springs avenue, Chambersburg street, York street from the square to Liberty street and Hanover street be the "division" streets for streets running north and south and Carlisle and Baltimore streets be division streets for those running east and west.

All buildings, the ordinance provides, shall be numbered with odd numbers beginning with "1" on the right sides of the streets from the property line of division streets, with a number for each 12½ feet, and even numbers on the left. Number

$35,000 FIRE LEVELS KNOUSE FARM BUILDING

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a two-story, 40 by 100 feet frame storage building on the Edgewood farm owned by M. E. Knoose, Arendtsville, this morning at 10 o'clock. Damage to machinery in the building and to the structure was estimated at about $35,000.

Biglerville and Bendersville fire companies were called to the conflagration at the farm located one mile north of Bendersville in Menallen township. While the building is within an eighth of a mile from the Bendersville reservoir the firemen could not get lines to the reservoir to secure water because of the deep snow drifts. A spray house 20 feet away from the blazing structure was saved, however, by the firemen.

In the structure were a power sprayer, another sprayer, two tractors, two large trucks loaded with seven tons of fertilizer, a pick-up truck, 5,000 crates and a number of ladders and similar orchard equipment. Equipment used on the Edgewood farm and other Knoose farms in the area is normally stored in the structure there.

GALA PROGRAM PREPARED FOR EAGLES' FETE

Forty years ago the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, then only a youngster itself in point of years among the fraternal organizations of the nation, gave a charter to a band of Gettysburg and Adams county men who saw in the Eagles an opportunity for fellowship, community service and mutual benefit.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, of this week, Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562, now grown from its original 78 charter members to an organization with close to 1,500 members, observes its 40th birthday with a gala program.

Designed not only to commemorate the aerie's anniversary, but also to honor the eight remaining active members of the original charter group, no effects have been spared to make the three-day celebration one long to be remembered in Eagle-dom.

Anniversary Committee

This program has been arranged by a special 40th anniversary committee, composed of C. David McCullough, president, Leo S. Thomas, James B. Aumen, John E. Storm, Jacob J. Wright, Gordon L. Borough Spends $520 During Storm To Keep Streets Clean

The snowstorm of February 20 which partially paralyzed traffic, closed many schools and broke six-year weather records, cost the borough of Gettysburg $520 for snowplowing and snow removal up to Saturday, March 1, Borough Engineer LeRoy H. Winebrenner reported to borough council Monday night.

If an ordinance, proposed by Mr. Winebrenner some time ago, to ban all night parking on the streets here had been in force during this storm, at least $75 of the cost of snow removal would have been saved, the engineer told council. No action has been taken on the proposed ordinance.

Mr. Winebrenner reported that the borough's new truck, equipped with a plow, began plowing snow at 4 p. m. on February 20, and worked continuously, with four different operators, until 5 p. m. on Saturday, February 22. It also plowed all day Sunday, February 23, and part of Monday, February 24. The small

COUNCIL FREES VET BARRACKS FROM FIRE ACT

The new student dormitories erected at Gettysburg college by the federal government, the infirmary and the recreation building, all temporary one-story frame structures, were exempted from the provisions of the borough fire ordinance covering building construction by borough council Monday night after Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson had appeared before council to request this action.

A resolution was adopted on motion of Councilman H. M. Oyler, seconded by Councilman George March, exempting the buildings and any others which may be erected by the government later, from provisions of the ordinance until January 1, 1957, or for a period of ten years, which Dr. Hanson estimated would cover the G. I. student emergency.

1,125 Students Here

"Our college was built for 650 students," Dr. Hanson said. "Last year we had applications from 3,000 freshmen. We could take only 400. We have had 1,000 applications from those wishing to enter Gettysburg college for the second semester. We took 100."

Dr. Hanson said the college now has 1,125 students on the campus, of which 775 are veterans.

Fire Of Unknown Origin Destroys Airport Hangar And Eight Planes Monday Night; 4200 Chicks Burn

Cargo Plane Turns Over On Takeoff Here

A strange prelude to the costly conflagration that consumed $85,000 worth of airplanes, parts, equipment, 4,200 baby chicks and the hangar at the Gettysburg Airport Monday night unfolded itself during the afternoon. A damaged cargo plane is one result, in addition to the blaze.

Last Saturday afternoon Richard Bircher read a display advertisement in The Gettysburg Times announcing that a chartered plane would land at the Gettysburg Airport Monday noon with a cargo of baby chicks. The advertisement stated that "everybody was welcome" to witness the chick-transportation feat.

Bircher Gives Warning

Mr. Bircher had not been advised of the announced arrival of the ship and notified Robert J. Staub, Biglerville, Adams county representative of the chick hatchery that was shipping the chicks here, of the snow-covered condition of the airport and the dangers attending any landing or take-off unless the ship was properly equipped.

At 2:45 o'clock Monday afternoon the big ship circled the airport and then came in for the landing. Francis Watrous, Meriden, Conn., owner-pilot of the Canadian built Nordyn Norseman cargo plane, was at the controls. His brother, Arthur

CHAMBER ASKS BETTER PLAN ON SNOW REMOVAL

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce went on record Monday night at its meeting in the Kadel building as recommending that the borough adopt "more adequate means for the removal of snow on the streets," either through the use of machinery operated by the borough itself, or through contract with a firm having adequate snow removal machinery.

The directors said that much snow and ice still remains, and is a hazard to both motorists and pedestrians, particularly the latter and elderly persons, in crossing streets and ice-coated intersections. A letter recommending better and faster snow removal is being prepared to be forwarded to the borough council.

Have 75 Members

The membership committee reported that the chamber now has 75 members, nine of which are new ones. The latter are: McCauslin Auto Sales, Warren Chevrolet, Central Chemical company, Adams County Novelty company, Adams County Electric Cooperative, Bulleit and Bulleit, Donald P. McPherson, Jr., Prosperity Dry Cleaners and the Gettysburg Steam Laundry.

The directors went on record as favoring passage of House Bill 417, for higher salaries for teachers, and directed that letters be sent to Adams county's representatives. Announcement was made of the new mimeograph machine installed in the chamber's office for use of members.

Because of conflicting dates with events in the borough, the date of the membership dinner originally planned for March 13 was left open.

Here And There

When five years of aviation effort were wiped out in a one-hour destructive $85,000 fire at the Gettysburg Airport Monday night, Richard Bircher, owner-operator, unexcitedly announced that he would rebuild. He also told his employees "Don't feel so badly. There's work for all of us to do. We're all still on the payroll." He was the heaviest loser and calmest man at the fire.

It was not Mr. Bircher's first reverse.

When war broke out in 1941 his Boulevard Airport and school of aviation instruction was closed as a war-time protective emergency measure. His flying field near Philadelphia, was too close to the Atlantic seaboard, so he was told by the War Department.

Bircher then came to Gettysburg to start a new airport and aviation school. He overcame several initial reverses and finally acquired the present airport site. Soon he was instructing civilian pilots. A short-time later the government discontinued this training.

Then the government sent Army Air Corps Cadets for flight instruction at the airport, it having been certified by government inspectors to be one of the best in the east. The cadets received their ground school instruction at Gettysburg college.

At the height of the program the government discontinued the project. Bircher trained 1,607 cadets without a mishap, achieving the highest rating of all the airports in the program.

Bircher continued his instruction program and trained a number of Adams countians as well as other interested fliers to be pilots. During the past year 40 veterans received their pilot's license at the local airport.

A veteran pilot himself and a

Fire of mysterious, and as yet undetermined, origin destroyed the Gettysburg Airport hangar, eight airplanes, including a $5,745 Stinson, more than $13,000 worth of airplane parts, all the machine tools and equipment, office records and furnishings and 4,200 chicks, which had been temporarily stored in the hangar office, shortly after 10 o'clock Monday night.

Six of the planes destroyed in the conflagration were stored in the hangar, five of them privately owned by local pilots who had received their flying instructions at the airport. Two were "anchored" on the "line" outside the hangar. 24 other planes "on the line" outside were not damaged.

The loss is estimated in excess of $85,000.

Richard Bircher, owner-operator of the airport, said his property was covered by insurance but was unable to state whether the privately-owned planes were insured. Their owners are: Glenn C. Bream and Lake Reaver, of Gettysburg, Ernest Unger and Charles Taylor, of Biglerville, Stewart Grove and Jack Starry, of York Springs.

Will Build New Hangar

Before the flames had spent themselves in completely destroying the property Mr. Bircher told a reporter for The Gettysburg Times that he would "rebuild a larger and better hangar."

"Business will continue at the airport as usual," Mr. Bircher said.

The hangar was of cement block and cement construction, erected in 1942. Pilots started flying from the airport on June 12 of that year.

The hangar was 60 by 60 feet; the office 60 by 20 feet with a second and third floor, the latter a private office and control tower; the partially completed hangar annex, the walls of which had collapsed during a recent gale and had been rebuilt, was to be 60 by 60 feet.

Origin Is Unknown

No one knows just how and when the fire started. Mr. and Mrs. Bircher were listening to the radio in their home adjoining the airport shortly after 10 o'clock Monday night when they heard the loud shrieking of an automobile horn and then a heavy knock at the door. Clyde Lauver, of Mummaburg, and a companion, driving along the road, had discovered flames shooting from a hangar window and stopped to warn Mr. Bircher.

Mrs. Bircher attempted to telephone the local exchange but apparently the wires had been burned. Lauver then started for Gettysburg to call the local fire company. Later Mrs. Bircher tried again to reach the exchange and in some manner a local operator contacted her and received confirmation of the fire.

Firemen Respond Quickly

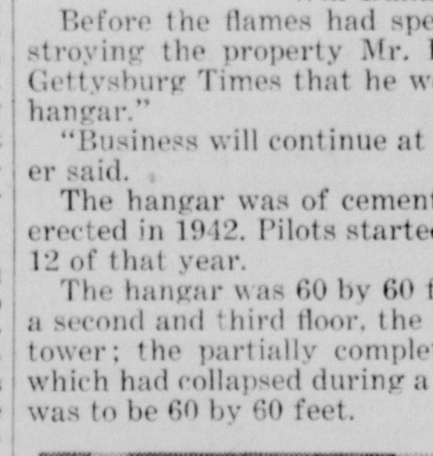

Within a few minutes the local department arrived at the airport with most of its equipment. Although Mr. Bircher warned the firemen of the danger from a possible collapse of walls and the intense heat, firemen attempted to reach a well, next the hangar, but were driven back by the flames. Water from a booster tank on the service truck was poured on the flames but to no avail.

When the firemen arrived the hangar was a raging inferno. A strong west wind, of gale-like proportions, fanned the flames into long, leaping tongues that reached every section of the large building.

Mr. Bircher attempted to open a hangar door to pull stored planes from the flaming structure but was driven back by the searing heat.

COUNTY ROADS BEING CLEARED

The state highway department today reported the road situation in Adams county "much improved" over Monday. With the drifting condition practically stopped, the plows have been able to make good progress and as a result all main roads are open—at least one-lane—and many secondary roads have been opened. Sixty per cent of the dirt roads in the county are still closed, according to estimates by highway department workers.

(By The Associated Press)

A roaring snowstorm lashed much of Pennsylvania with uninterrupted fury today, piling deep drifts still higher, isolating more communities and forcing railroads to combine operations in the northwestern section to maintain some semblance of traffic.

The Baltimore and Ohio's Philadelphia to Buffalo train through Kane was routed over the Pennsylvania railroad lines along with other trains which had to buck 10-foot drifts to pass through the mountainous McKean county area.

High winds and continued snow piled snow at Kane to an even four feet since February 1. A total of 28 inches fell in the last eight days of virtually constant storms. Bus traffic was limited to sectional runs there and bone-weary highway crews barely were able to keep roads passable.

Patton and Carrolltown in Cambria county still were cut off today.

Fire

and other employees pull nearby planes "on the line" outside to safety as the fire threatened to spread. Firemen also poured water on a nearby "inflammable" tool shed where highly inflammable materials are stored.

"The Gettysburg firemen responded more quickly than I had thought it was possible and they did everything they could under existing conditions. They could not reach our water supply and it was impossible to pump water from the frozen nearby creek. The firemen rendered me other assistance in saving planes and their efforts kept the fire from spreading to our inflammable shed. They did a marvelous job," Mr. Bircher said.

Despite the snow-dirt driveway from the Mummaburg road to the hangar, approximately 1,700 feet away, the local firemen drove their heavy trucks through the drifts up to the hangar.

Five Years of Effort

In less than an hour after the fire was discovered the hangar and its contents were a total loss and the flaming debris of what was once Adams county's flying headquarters was burning itself out in the basement of the building. Large portions of the cement block walls had collapsed under the searing heat. The six hangar-stored planes were unrecognizable.

In the roaring fire-pit lay some $85,000 worth of airport effort expended over the past five years.

A State Police fire marshal will investigate the cause of the blaze.

LEGION ROSTER REACHES 1074

Membership in the Albert J. Lentz Post No. 202, American Legion, reached a total of 1,074, with 11 new members being accepted at Monday night's meeting, Harry Ridinger, adjutant, reported at the meeting. Glenn Raffensperger, vice commander of the post, presided.

Announcement was made that National Commander Paul H. Griffith of Uniontown, Pa., will be the speaker at a Legion meeting in the senior high school in Waynesboro March 7 at 8 p. m. and a large delegation of Gettysburg Legionnaires is making plans to attend. A dinner will be held preceding the meeting in the United Brethren church.

The post went on record as favoring passage of House Bill No. 417, providing salary increases for teachers.

Reports of the building committee said that work on the new home had suffered a slight delay due to the weather, but that construction was proceeding satisfactorily.

Eighty-two members attended the meeting. Refreshments were served.

to save the 273 men from Texas who were trapped by the Germans. Now he thought he and his wife, now that he was a veteran, could settle in Texas. But the people of the town came to him and gave him 24 hours to get out of the community, they would have none of his kind there.

A soldier lay in Walter Reed hospital. Both of his legs had been removed as a result of war wounds. His parents sought to return to their home town in California, and the people of that town burned the house so they would be rid of them.

Blames War Hysteria

Thus, says Ben Kuroki, are the American troops of Japanese ancestry welcomed back to their homeland.

Yet, speaking before 300 gathered Monday evening in Brua chapel, former Sergeant Kuroki, calmly said that he believed that prejudices against minorities could be eradicated and are being eradicated to a great extent and that the discrimination against and treatment of Americans of Japanese descent are part of the war hysteria and will be forgotten to some extent in time.

"Do not misunderstand me," he concluded, "I do not want to claim that all Americans of Japanese descent are angels—but I do want to claim that the men who fought have proven their love for America by their deeds and I do want to claim that every Japanese-American is a loyal American and that every American of Japanese descent is a true American and not a dual citizen who pays allegiance to any foreign power."

Proved Loyal Americans

"At no time prior to, during of after World War II did any American of Japanese descent or his parents engage in sabotage or give aid to the enemy in any way. I know that may seem to be a misstatement of fact—but I urge you to check with the FBI if you do not believe me. Every one proved himself to be a loyal American."

Kuroki said he never knew what racial discrimination was until he left his home town of Hershey, Nebraska, the day after Pearl Harbor to enlist in the U. S. Army. At Hershey "I was just one of the boys around the town." When he attempted to enlist he found he was a "Jap."

Finally getting overseas he found that the discrimination against himself as a Japanese-American in the U. S. disappeared. "When fighting there was no question of race, color, or creed. Everyone fought together and one could never find a better example of democracy."

Fights Discrimination

He flew 30 missions in the European Theater, and then was returned to the U. S. Back once more he found that in California despite his uniform and decorations, he could not even ride in taxi-cabs because he was a "Jap."

Seeking to fight in the Pacific he finally had to obtain the aid of his congressman, a west coast newspaper editor and others in order to get overseas on special orders direct from the War department.

He fought 28 missions over Japan and found no discrimination against him among the crew of his plane and among his fellow soldiers. But returning to the U. S. he again found difficulty in getting hotel rooms, getting fed in restaurants and the like because of his ancestry. Ordered to New York by the army to speak on the Herald Tribune forum, he found that some hotels were barred to him because of his background.

As a result he went on a speaking tour which will end this fall when he enters the University of Nebraska. "I am fighting against discrimination," he told the group, "not only against the Americans of Japanese descent, but also discrimination against any other minority. For an attack on one minority is an attack on all minorities. And an attack on minorities is an attack against all America."

America Should Lead

"The United States should be a leader of democracy — but stealing land from ex-GIs because their parents are Japanese, or killing negroes does not speak well for America to the world. We can't afford to lose our position morally as an exponent of democracy — for the news of our discrimination spreads everywhere in the world immediately. Those who continue race prejudices are few — but so were the groups that put Hitler and Tojo into power."

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of the college, spoke briefly in urging the student group to do all in its power to bring "brotherhood to the world."

Dr. William Sundermeyer, faculty advisor for the International club of the college, which sponsored the talk, spoke on the aims of the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization, known as UNESCO, to which the International club is connected.

Robert S. Beharry, president of the International club, presided.

Cargo Plane

H. Watrous, was with him. His cargo consisted of 6,000 baby chicks. 1,800 were unloaded and turned over to Mr. Staub for delivery to buyers in the county. Watrous then announced that he was going to take off for Winchester, Va., his next destination.

Warns Against Take-off

Mr. Bircher cautioned against a take-off because of the snow-covered runway and the strong west wind that swept the airport. The cargo plane was not equipped with skis. Watrous, however, felt that he could get into the air with his big ship and cargo despite the snow and wind. His ship was pulled to one end of the runway by Bircher's airport employees and Watrous "gave it the gun." The big ship plowed along the runway through the snow but could not lift the ship. When he reached the end of the runway his plane turned over.

Airport employees rushed to the scene. Watrous and his brother emerged unhurt.

Store Chicks In Hangar

With a tractor, trailer and a sled airport employees unloaded the 4,200 baby chicks, all packed in paper cartons, and hauled them to the hangar where Watrous prevailed upon Mr. Bircher to store them for the night. Watrous telephoned the Hall Brothers hatchery in Wallingford, Conn., and he was informed

$35,000 FIRE

Sterling Barber, who lives in the house at the Edgewood farm. She called the fire companies and Harold Steiner, manager of the Knouse farms. Steiner and a number of men working for him arrived sometimes before the fire companies but could not remove anything from the structure because of the rapidity with which the flames spread.

Within an hour after the fire was discovered, the building had been nearly consumed.

Bruce Knouse, who is in charge of the storage building, was said to have visited there this morning and to have checked the stove in the structure about 9 o'clock before going to the National Fruit Product plant at Peach Glen. When he left there was no sign of fire in the building and the stove seemed to be in good condition. An hour later Mrs. Barber saw smoke pouring from the building and called the companies.

that the temperature of the hangar would permit storing the chicks there for the night.

The coal-fueled hangar furnace in the basement was fired as usual through cold winter nights.

Seven hours later the 4,200 baby chicks were consumed in the mysterious conflagration.

State police are investigating the crash.

DICKINSON TO MEET BULLETS ON WEDNESDAY

Gettysburg college's basketball team, in the throes of a seven game losing streak, winds up its season this week by playing two games on foreign courts.

On Wednesday evening the Bullets will meet Dickinson at Carlisle and Saturday night engage Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster.

The junior varsity will play preliminary tilts to both games.

Dickinson, victors 48-43 over the Bullets here on January 8, are expected to be doubly tough on their home court after being upset Saturday night by Bucknell 55-44 at Lewisburg. Until that reverse the Red Devils had copped 11 games in a row. The Bison reverse was their second in 13 contests.

Halting Johnny Hopper will be big problem for the Brethren. Hopper is regarded as the best shot ever to perform for Dickinson and has sparked his team to all of its triumphs.

Coach "Hen" Bream will probably use the same lineup that faced Rutgers, Hart and Rambo, forwards; Boehner, center, and Dracha and Mechner, guards. First line reserves will include the former Jayvee variety of Fair and Gorman, forwards; Kissel, center, and Fidler and Novak, guards.

Akers, who had been shelved with a fractured toe, drilled Monday and will probably see action.

PLAYER DEALS BEING RESUMED

(By The Associated Press)
Trade winds were blowing again today and this time it looks like the real McCoy.

The swap talk involves a player deal between the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants. The two national league teams were reported to have had a deal all cooked up during the winter meetings but it fell through at the last minute.

What revived talk of resumption of a deal between the two ancient rivals was the presence of Cub scout Walter (Dutch) Ruether, old-time pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds and New York Yankees at the Giants' training camp at Phoenix, Ariz., yesterday.

Ruether blew into camp last night from the Cubs' Catalina Island base and frankly admitted he is scouting the Giants. While he refused to say, it was believed he came to scout Shortstop Billy Rigney whom the Giants had offered to the Cubs in exchange for Outfielder Harry (Peanuts) Lowrey.

Need Shortstop
The Cubs, who need a shortstop badly, were quite willing to take Rigney, but balked at giving up Lowrey and offered Outfielder Bill Nicholson instead. When the Giants insisted on Lowrey or no deal—it was no deal.

Another deal believed about to come off is one between Washington and Cleveland. It has been reported that the Nats are about to send Pitcher Roger Wolf to the Indians in exchange for Outfielder George Case. Bill Veck, Tribe boss, was in Orlando, Fla., Senator boss, to talk with Washington Owner Clark Griffith and was said to have telephoned a tentative acceptance. Wolf was a 20-game winner for the Nats in 1945 but had a poor season last year. Case was traded away from Washington only last year, but suffered from sinus and his batting fell away off with the Tribe.

Keath Leads Lord In Scoring Honors

Philadelphia, March 4 (AP)—Point-producing Frankie Keath of Elizabethtown was 18 points ahead of Joe Lord today in the red-hot race for the 1947 collegiate basketball scoring crown in Pennsylvania.

Keath's 20-game total was 420, the weekly Associated Press survey disclosed, while Villanova's Lord had 402 points in 22 games.

While no other Keystone state cager had an outside chance to copy the crown won last year by Billy Bilenkoff of Slippery Rock Teachers, there was an eight-contender race going on for third spot.

Muhlenberg's Harry Donovan ranked third with 327 but Chet Dembinski of Westminster had 324. Dan Kodish of Mansfield Teachers 320, Ed Anlian of Albright 318 and four others topped the 300-mark.

Lord narrowed Keath's basket lead to two two-pointers. Keath's total was 165 while Lord had 163. Anlian ranked third with 135.

In the average ledger, Keath retained a substantial lead with a mark of 21.0 points per game. Kodish was second with 18.8 and Lord third with 18.3.

Dembinski retained his lead in foul conversions with 96. Keath was second with 90 while Donovan ranked third with 79.

LEO BANS EVEN CARD PLAYING

Havana, March 4 (AP)—The reports that have been filtering back home about the great reformation of Leo Durocher have not been exaggerated—if anything, they have been vastly understated.

The manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers is without much question one of the most reformed characters in the world today, and he is wearing his new-found belief in the better life as though it were a cloth of gold.

Last night as he eased into a conservative suit of pajamas at 9 p. m. and prepared to get a good night's sleep, which he has discovered is amazingly beneficial, Leo expounded at some length, between polite yawns, on the new Dodger regime.

"There'll be no card playing of any kind on this ball club," he said sternly. "Not even bridge. They tell me there used to be some gambling. All right, that's out. I talked with my players about it and they agreed it was the thing to do."

Too Much Reform
(Privately, some of the players, with nothing to do at night except wear their arches out on the hard, stone lobby floor, told this correspondent they wished Leo had reformed a little more gradually.)

"I'm not asking my players to do anything I'm not doing," he continued, virtuously. "Look at me. I haven't been out of this room at night, I ate one meal in the dining room, and what happens but a book-maker comes over and tries to sit down with me. So now I'm having all the rest of my meals right here in the room."

TRAINING CAMP NEWS IN BRIEF

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Outfielder Erv Dusak signed his contract with the St. Louis Cardinals and Manager Eddie Dyer received word from owner Sam Breadon that pitcher John Grodzicki and outfielder Bill Endicott would report this week.

Tucson, Ariz.—Bob Lemon, who played third, the outfield and pitched for the Cleveland Indians last year, will start on the mound against the Giants Saturday. "Lemon should be one of our better pitchers," Manager Lou Boudreau said. "He looked great last season, but he was working too fast."

Lakeland, Fla.—Hal Newhouse, Dizzy Trout, Virgil Trucks and Fred Hutchinson, the Big Four of the Detroit Tigers staff will serve 'em up to the hitters today for the first time since reporting to camp. Only shortstop Eddie Lake was missing as Ben Steiner, former Red Sox infielder, reported for a 60-day trial.

Clearwater, Fla.—Homer Spragins, 198-pound right-hander from Minter, Miss., has caught the eye of Manager Ben Chapman of the Philadelphia Phils. "This kid Spragins looks like he's got the stuff, like he's going to be a real pitcher," said Ben. Spragins won seven and lost eight games for Memphis last year.

HIDDEN TREASURE
Cherry Valley, Ill., (AP)—Mrs. Kathryn Oberg, a widow, is happy because she decided to have a new oil burner installed in her home.

Earl Barber, of Rockford, who installed the burner, found a tin box which he turned over to her. There was a three-inch stack of currency totaling $2,500. Mrs. Oberg theorized her husband, who died several years ago, had hidden the cash in the basement.

Barber got a $30 reward.

The U. S. Treasury in 1890 printed a national bank note showing $50 on one side, and $100 on the other. There are nearly a score of living species of penguins.

BUBBLERS TAKE FIRST PLACE IN COUNTY LEAGUE

Bolling Springs high took undisputed possession of first place in the Adams County Scholastic Basketball league by defeating Littlestown Monday evening 33-27.

As a result of the victory Bolling Springs is expected to represent the county loop in the Class C District 3 PIAA playoffs.

Biglerville plays Duncannon at Camp Hill Wednesday evening in a game and one-half ahead of third place Arendtsville, another Class C team. Biglerville, only Class B team in the circuit and one-half game behind Bolling Springs, has already qualified to play in the Class B playoffs.

Biglerville plays Duncannon at Camp Hill Wednesday evening in a game and one-half ahead of third place Arendtsville, another Class C team. Biglerville, only Class B team in the circuit and one-half game behind Bolling Springs, has already qualified to play in the Class B playoffs.

Road conditions forced the postponement of the Arendtsville-Biglerville games scheduled for Monday evening at Biglerville to further complicate the league standing. The game has been canceled for March 12.

Littlestown gave the Bolling Springs aggregation plenty of trouble before bowing. After thrilling 14-13 at half time, the Thunderbolts spurred to take a 22-19 lead at the close of the third period but in the last round the Bubblers put on the pressure to tally 14 points to gain the decision. Raudabaugh and School paced their teams with 10 and nine points, respectively.

The Littlestown girls led the whole way to gain an easy 34-22 triumph in the preliminary game. Crouse connected for 14 points for the winners.

Bethlehem Beats Allentown Quint

Philadelphia, March 4 (AP)—Allentown high's basketball team failed in its chance to clinch the Eastern Pennsylvania league crown last night, bowing 57-42 to Bethlehem at the University of Pennsylvania Palestra.

The Canaries—scholastic state champions for the past two years—were first-half winners and by whipping Bethlehem would have also copied the second-half flag.

By losing, Allentown and Bethlehem must meet again tomorrow night—also at the Palestra—to decide who will represent the East Penn loop in the state championships.

Bethlehem's Carey Smith, high scorer in the loop, and his teammate, Bill Bollec, were high scorers with 14 points.

Allentown led at halftime by 29-25.

OBLIGING JUDGE
Los Angeles, (AP)—Superior Judge Paul Valle granted an uncontested divorce decree to Mrs. Shirley Ruener yesterday after Attorney Barry M. Woodman prevailed upon the court to move the hearing from the regular chambers on the 19th floor to the ground floor probate court room.

Woodman explained his client suffers from claustrophobia and was unable to bring herself to enter an elevator to reach the 19th floor room where Judge Valle presides.

Yankees Defeat Venezuelan Team

Caracas, Venezuela, March 4 (AP)—The New York Yankees unleashed a heavy offensive in the early inning to defeat the Venezuelan all-stars 9-2 last night before an estimated crowd of 14,000 fans.

Catcher Ralph Houk led the attack with a homer and triple. In all, he drove in five runs. Larry Berra, another rookie catcher, who played right field, also blasted a homer.

HESS TOPS GHS CAGE SCORERS

Joe Hess, Gettysburg high school center, topped the team scorers for the season, a check of the records reveals.

Playing in 20 of the 21 games, Hess logged 168 points on 66 goals and 36 free tosses.

Doc Cole was second high with 147 and Kenny Fair third with 142. Fair was easily the best performer from the foul line where he converted 34 of but 45 attempts.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 4 (AP)—Tip from a New Englander who really knows the game is that Holy Cross stands a better-than-fair chance of winning the National Collegiate A. A. Basketball tournament. . . . The Crusaders have won 17 straight games and used three full teams in overworking Boston college, 90-48, last week. . . . And Boston fans actually broke down the arena doors last Friday to see a schoolboy cage game, which shows a new attitude toward basketball in New England.

ONE UP, ONE DOWN
Dick Gallagher, new William and Mary college baseball coach, claims he had the shortest career on record with one club. . . . He reported to the Lincoln club of the Nebraska State league one spring and while an intra-squad game was in practice. . . . First time at bat, Dick singled and slid into second on the next play. In making the slide he broke a leg and that finished him as a professional player. . . . "You've heard of careers being nipped in the bud," says Gallagher. "Mine didn't even get a chance to peek out from the roots."

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES
The Big Nine will discuss getting its 150-pound football program underway in 1947 during this week's conference meeting. . . . That usually gets a laugh from easterners who are the victims of cracks about the quality of their football. The 150-pound game originated in the east and the idea never spread until Fritz Crisler left Princeton for Michigan ten years ago. . . . Bob Feller expects to add an all-sports radio program to his activities this summer. It will be a transcribed affair originating in Cleveland. . . . Basketball coach Jack McDonald of Hofstra college, who saw Johnny Miles score 477 points this season, claims the boy could make 700 a season if he took all of his shots. . . . Another high-scorer in this area is lanky Sherman White of Englewood, N. J., high school. He racked up 490 points in 20 games to break all league and district scoring records set by guys like Mike Hamas, Jerry Calabrese and George Sella.

Tonight's Game
Final
Carlisle at Mechanicsburg.

Hershey and Chambersburg high school's basketball teams will clash on the Gettysburg college floor Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock for the second half championship of the South Penn cage league.

The planned playoff resulted when Hershey laced Hanover 48-38 Monday evening to gain a tie with the three-time champion Chambersburg outfit.

A victory for Chambersburg, first half titlist, will also give it the league championship while a win for Hershey will mean another playoff for the league title.

Gettysburg high school officials will be in charge of the game. General admission tickets, selling for 75 cents, are now on sale at the high school building. There will be no reserved seats.

Doors to the gymnasium will open at 7 o'clock. The officials will be Everett Morgan and Clay Stricker. During the first half Chambersburg defeated Hershey 46-24 at Chambersburg while Hershey turned the tables on the latter's court in the second half to gain a 45-36 decision in an extra period.

Hanover led the Hershey team for three periods Monday evening but a 17 point attack in the final half gave the home club the decision.

COUNCIL TOLD

Gettysburg who would like to take pride in Gettysburg's reputation of strangers. In fact, we are forced to believe that intelligent strangers who are inconvenienced by this duplication of street names, must regard the arrangement as nothing less than stupid.

"We believe that this matter calls for remedy, that the remedy lies in your hands, and that the remedy is fairly simple."

To Consult Residents
Burgess C. A. Heiges declared that the residents of the street between Hay and Buford avenues should be consulted before any action is taken, and Borough President Ray M. Hoffman referred the matter to the ordinance committee.

Council's other street problem was in choosing a new name for Reservoir street. It adopted a new ordinance correcting a previous error in the ordaining of the street, but left the name as it now stands, when it developed that there was a difference of opinion among interested property owners on the street as to what it should be called instead of Reservoir street.

The street in question is a dead end, extending from Locust avenue, which itself runs from Wainwright avenue, near the high school, to Baltimore street. Some of the property owners favored changing the name to Locust Lane. Others wanted it named Walnut avenue. Still another name suggested, which received scant consideration, was Pleasant View. Council was agreeable to re-naming the street whatever the property owners could agree upon, but there were none at the council meeting, so no change was made.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Dedication of New High School Building: The new high school building, situated between Springs avenue and the Chambersburg pike, was formally dedicated and transferred to the borough on Thursday evening, March 4. The exercises were held in the Assembly room of the school in the presence of an audience which filled the room to its utmost capacity. Charles M. McCurdy, Esq., president of the School Board, presided.

The exercises were opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Valentine. Mr. McCurdy detailed the action of the board in the erection of the building. . . . When the building was erected on High street in 1857 an extra tax of ten mills was assessed. In providing for this new building an extra imposition of only TWO mills was made. . . .

In a few chosen and eminently proper remarks he then formally handed over to the citizens of Gettysburg, through their representative, Hon. S. McC. Swope, the completed new high school building.

In the name of the citizens Judge Swope accepted the building after referring to the important part taken by Thaddeus Stevens in the establishment of our free schools.

After a few appropriate remarks by County Superintendent Thoman, Dr. N. C. Shaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, delivered the principal address, "Does Education Pay?"

Rev. Dr. Barkley presented, on behalf of the Ladies' Bible Society, of Gettysburg, a handsomely bound copy of the Holy Bible, for use in the school. Principal Hunter accepted the gift.

After singing of the Long Meter Doxology by the audience, the Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. D. W. Woods, Jr.

President McCurdy announced the presentation to the schools, by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Tawney, of a handsome and valuable organ.

The exercises were enlivened by the singing of several songs by the College Glee club.

The stage was tastefully decorated with palms and potted plants kindly furnished from the green house of Mr. G. Z. Stover, the florist.

Marriages: Chronister-Haverstock—March 4, in this place, by the Rev. George M. Glenn, John H. Chronister, of Menallen township, to Miss Annie Alice Haverstock, of Huntington township.

The Mite Society of St. James Lutheran church will hold a hot biscuit and chicken supper Thursday evening, March 11, in the room of the Smith building, York street, lately vacated by M. T. Wasson. All are invited.

Typos' Banquet: On Saturday evening the printers of this place held a banquet at the Central hotel, at which about fourteen of the craft were present and did ample justice to the luxuries of the season. William A. Scott, Esq., acted as toastmaster.

New Borough Officers: Cicero W. Stoner, Esq., on Monday administered the oath of office to Burgess McCammon, the three members of Town Council, J. W. Fleharty, Geo.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A LITTLE WARMTH

Why do I write these Talks from day to day? Well, in the first place I started writing them to keep up my own morale. I wrote them then, and I write them now, to encourage myself. They are really talks to myself simply, and that's the way I like to talk to other folks.

For half my lifetime I have written these talks. They have been as much a part of my life as breakfast, and going to my office, and getting up in the morning. I would think that my life was over if I stopped writing them—and yet, I sometimes think that I shall stop writing them. I wonder what it would be like. And then I say to myself that I must go on, no matter what. If I stopped I would get no more encouraging letters. I would grow less observant, perhaps, read less, and forget more.

These Talks haven't been written for money alone. What I have gained from them has been spent for books and things of art and beauty, that have enriched myself, and which I have passed on to many other places for double enrichment. I have continued to write them to give a little additional warmth to those who choose to read them. I hope I have not totally failed. It warms me when I am told that I have helped a little to warm another, or to strengthen courage, or add to the faith to which we must cling to some degree.

Yes, these Talks are being written, out of busy days, largely to create warmth where warmth is most needed. To the low in spirit, to those who are young and hopeful, as well as to those who have experienced what Ulysses went through—much traveling, much suffering, much discouragement, and much living—but still with the urge to go on—and on.

These Talks are written to give a little warmth all along the line of human experience. To open a little Sun spot, where only darkness lodged. To suggest hope and a brighter vision ahead. In the midst of so much confusion, doubt, and questioning if I have failed in doing this, then I ought to stop writing, and have failed—for thirty years! I wonder.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Reach and Rootage."

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST
The Poet of the People
WAIL OF THREE CITIES
Chicago, Boston and New York,
Who hold men's greater friends,
You lure away good friends to stay.

To reap your larger yields,
Last night Chicago took a friend.
Next month New York may call.
On some pretext may Boston next
Of friendship rob us all.

I never like to say "Farewell!"
I'd rather say "Hello!"
Friends, tried and true, are, oh, so few.

It hurts to have one go.
But when some city far away
A man to lead must choose,
A call 'twill send unto a friend
I can't afford to lose.

Chicago, Boston or New York,
I shudder when I hear
With larger pay you're lured away
A friend of many a year.
Your fame is fair, your friends are vast,

But still resentful, I
Again repeat 'tis sad to meet
To bid a friend goodbye.

PRESIDENTS OF EAGLES WIDELY TRAVELLED MEN

The grand worthy presidents of the Fraternal Order of Eagles get to be great travelers, and "Jim" Bryan of Bremerton, Wash., is no exception to this rule, according to Purl Stone, writing in the Eagles magazine. "Jim" has been forced to forego his favorite hobby, salmon fishing in Puget Sound, while he "takes to the road" in the interests of the Eagles.

Bryan was elected president of the Eagles at the 1946 grand aerie convention. He has been traveling from aerie to aerie for the past six months, telling the story of Eagledom, meeting Eagles everywhere, and making many new friends for the fraternity.

The new grand worthy president wasted no time in getting started on his tour at the conclusion of the Columbus convention. He headed for Michigan where he told members about the humanitarian programs adopted by the convention and stated that advancement of these programs throughout the country would raise the standards of Eagledom in the opinions of the people of the nation.

Has Law Business

The latter part of September found Jim in Nebraska. During October he toured the great state of Iowa. His quick trip home to see his family and to check up on his law practice was punctuated by visits to Aeries in Washington, Idaho and Oregon. No time for salmon fishing then.

Jim did have a chance to indulge in another hobby of his—hunting—on his November tour of Illinois.

In December, several Wisconsin Aeries had the privilege of hearing Bryan. A feature of this trip was his radio appearance on Milwaukee's Eagles' Luncheon Club of the Air program.

Then it was "home for the holidays."

But 1947 found Jim on the road again. Down the west coast he traveled on an extensive tour of California aeries. Then back up into Oregon to wind up the month of January.

Born In Louisiana

Traveling is nothing new to Bryan. He got an early start in cross-country treks. Born in Louisiana, he made his first long trip—all the way to Seattle—at the age of three. When he was just entering his 'teens, his dad was elected congressman-at-large from Washington. Across the country he went again to spend two years in the nation's capital.

At 16 his traveling was confined to Seattle trolleys—as a conductor. The job developed his memory for names and faces. He could call out the streets blindfolded.

Jim matriculated at the University of Washington and saw a lot more of the country as a member of its athletic teams. He became one of the university's all-time athletic greats. In the 1923 Rose Bowl game, the fellow who caught the pass to tie a great Navy team was All-American Jim Bryan. Two years later, while in law school, he started in the first East-West football game in San Francisco. He was three-letter man in basketball and copped two monograms in track.

Racine Eagles Go In For Sports

RACINE, WIS.—Officers of Racine Aerie have taken forward steps to draw young members to the Fraternal Order of Eagles and to hold interest in the organization by inaugurating an all-around sports program that has attracted considerable favorable attention in Southern Wisconsin.

To date the program includes such sports as bowling, softball, basketball, darts and table tennis. Always strong on bowling as a sports activity for members, the aerie now boasts of a 16-team league operating this season.

During the summer months the aerie softball team piled up an outstanding record in the district by winning 14 games in a row and playing a 15-inning 1-1 tie with South Milwaukee aerie's team.

The basketball, table tennis and darts teams are the nucleus for an expanded program within the aerie.

New Haven Aerie Burns Its Mortgage

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Connecticut State Aerie officers, visitors from neighboring Aeries and more than 400 members of New Haven Aerie took part in the recent mortgage burning celebration which was highlighted by the initiation of a large class of candidates.

One of the features of the celebration was the roll call of veteran New Haven Eagles. Two of the four surviving charter members, Treasurer Isador Schwed and George Saunders, some 15 members with 35 years of service, and at least 50 men who could look back on 25 years of Eagledom were present.

NEW AERIE ORGANIZED
CEDAR LAKE, IND.—The recent institution of new Cedar Lake Aerie No. 2529 brought the Fraternal Order of Eagles into another Indiana town with 104 members signing the charter list. The charter was spread by New Aerie Organizer Clem Clark. State Aerie Secretary Ray C. Brock was institution officer representing the Grand Aerie.

ST. CLOUD PLAN IS PATTERN FOR YOUTH PROGRAM

Recently more than 1,000 citizens of St. Cloud, Minn., a city of 21,000 population, turned out one night a week for eight weeks for the serious business of having a microscopic look at juvenile delinquency.

St. Cloud was the home of the first Eagle-sponsored Youth Guidance Institute, a unique experiment in training young people and youth leaders which promises to establish a pattern for the nation.

The idea of a youth guidance institute sprouted at the 1946 Grand Aerie convention at Columbus, Ohio, and was embodied in the report of the national commission to the delegates. St. Cloud seized upon the idea and began plans.

Everybody Represented
To the sessions trekked parents, teachers, policemen, business men, students—sixth grader to college senior—and a host of others. One mother whose children's behavior had brought them frequently into juvenile court occupied the same up-front seat every session.

The institute audience heard such outstanding national youth leaders as Father E. J. Flanagan of Boys Town; R. T. Harbo, representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

Father Flanagan Gives His Tribute

"I feel very proud that I belong as an active member to the Fraternal Order of Eagles. I am not a joiner. I belong to very few organizations."

and prominent state figures, including Gov.-Elect Luther W. Youngdahl, Mayor Hubert H. Humphrey of Minneapolis, and Sheriff Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, former heavy weight title contender and an idol of Minnesota youth. He heard local and state law enforcement officers, welfare workers, religious leaders, and educators.

Survey Problems

No factor in youth development was overlooked. The institute delved into the influence of the home, the church, the schools, the movies, the radio, the press. What kind of recreation is best for youth? How can youth groups and civic, fraternal, and veterans' organizations contribute to youth guidance? These and kindred questions received attention.

No one in St. Cloud is likely to tell you that the Eagle institute has solved all its youth problems.

The community did have the get-up and gumption to take some microscopic looks into the problems and to make known the need for positive action. And it has at least made its teen-agers supremely conscious of the fact that they count for something. There are few youngsters in St. Cloud today who feel like letting their elders down.

Rochester Eagles Give To Aid Deaf

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Rochester Eagles, who have always taken an active part in civic betterment programs in their city, made another outstanding contribution when they presented a check for $5,000 to the American Society of the Hard of Hearing to assist it in realizing its goal of $100,000 to purchase hearing aids for deaf people.

The gift was approved by the Grand Aerie financial advisor, and the presentation was made at a dinner meeting in a local hotel.

PARI-MUTUEL BILLS BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Harrisburg, March 4 (P)—Two measures proposing legalized pari-mutuel horse race betting were in the legislative hopper today.

Predicting enactment of such legislation would boost Commonwealth revenues by $10,000,000 a year, Rep. Frank A. Costa (R-Phila.) said.

"If they're looking for money, here's a way to get it."

His was one of two bills introduced in the State House of Representatives last night which would permit the erection of three tracks in the Keystone state, with a percentage of the daily betting receipts going to the state.

Percentages Differ

Three per cent would be the figure under the bill sponsored by Costa and Cornelius J. Loftus, and four per cent, under the measure offered by Morris J. Root, Paul Naumann, Jr., S. Harry Myers and Edwin S. Livingston. All are Philadelphia Republicans.

Costa pointed out New Jersey reaped a harvest of $670,000 for a single 42-day season at the Garden State track near Camden last year.

Organized church groups represented by the Federated Legislative committee of Pennsylvania have already voiced opposition to any legislation to legalize pari-mutuel betting in the state. Similar legislation in previous years fell by the wayside.

One For Soldier Bonus

Both of the new measures were alike in most respects, except one would earmark state receipts to mental hospitals and the other would provide funds for a soldier bonus.

The tracks, although privately operated on a profit limited to six per cent of the betting receipts, would be regulated by a state racing commission in the Department of Agriculture.

The three members of the commission would be appointed for six-year terms at an annual salary of $5,000. The chairman would get $5,500.

A county opinion vote would be required under the Costa-Loftus measure. The other bill, however, would have to be approved by both a statewide and county referendum.

Bankers Ask Change In Saturday Closing

The following statement was released today by the Committee on Legislation, Pennsylvania Bankers' association, chairmaned by Carl W. Penninger, vice president of the Provident Trust company, Philadelphia and W. Elbridge Brown, executive vice president and trust officer of the Clearfield, Pa., Trust company.

"It appears obvious from many reports of public sentiment on Saturday bank closing throughout Pennsylvania, that the State Legislature would not approve a mandatory bill. Since returns were received from the questionnaire issued by Pennsylvania Bankers' association, permissive bills have become law in New York and New Jersey. Ohio is canvassing their situation. The Maryland Legislature now has permissive, closing under consideration, the bill having passed the House and is now up for second reading in the Senate. In Delaware, the Wilmington banks have been closing on Saturday for some months under a year round permissive act, with banks in other counties, excepting one, being similarly privileged.

"These various actions have undoubtedly influenced sentiment in Pennsylvania in favor of permissive closing, because these actions in bordering states will affect many of our Pennsylvania banks.

"The Pennsylvania Bankers' Association Committee on Legislation is accordingly suggesting amendments to the Frazier bill, S-38, to provide for permissive Saturday closing for the entire year, in order that each section of the state may meet the problem in accordance with its particular needs."

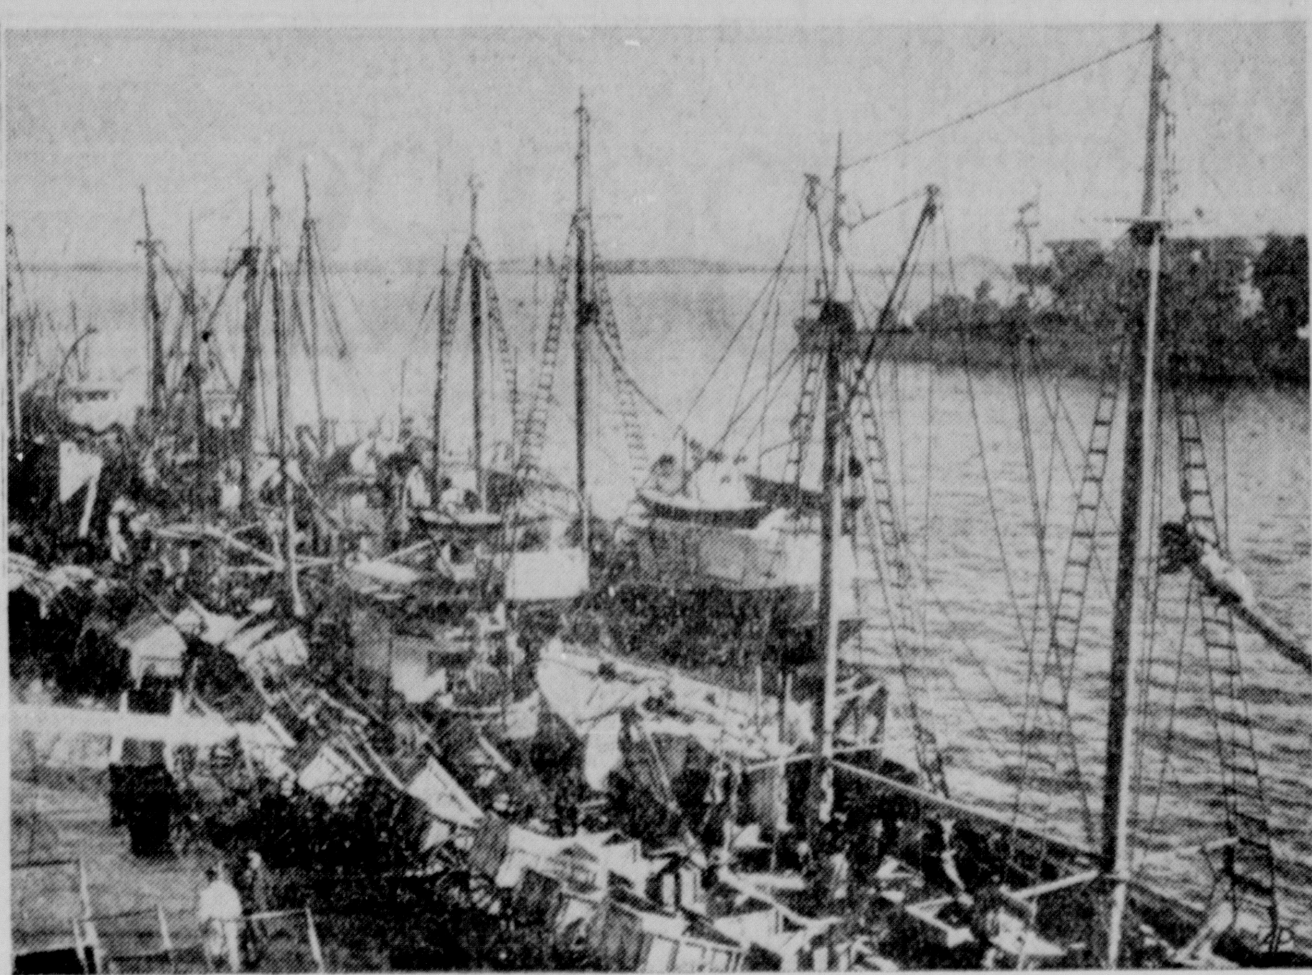

CEDARBROOK CHOSEN

Philadelphia, March 4 (P)—The fourth annual $15,000 Philadelphia Inquirer invitation golf tournament will be played on the par-71 Cedarbrook Country club course just outside Philadelphia May 22, 23, 24, and 25. Herman Barron won the event last year, and Sammy Byrd and Bryon Nelson the two previous years.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR CHILDREN OF VETS ASKED

Harrisburg, March 4 (P)—Establishment of a competitive college scholarship fund for children of deceased or disabled honorably discharged war veterans from Pennsylvania is provided in a Democratic-sponsored bill in the State Senate.

The bill, now before the Senate Education committee, provides that the Commonwealth award competitive two-year scholarships with a top tuition of $350 a year. In addition, the Commonwealth would pay $100-a-year maintenance for not more than four years.

NEW VICTIMS OF VIOLENCE IN PALESTINE

Jerusalem, March 4 (P)—Anti-British violence claimed new victims in Palestine today as the Jewish underground proclaimed the existence of a state of "open war" in the strife-torn Holy Land.

Five British soldiers were wounded—two seriously—when a military truck was wrecked by an explosion near Rishon Le Zion this morning, and four Arabs were injured when an RAF vehicle was blown up by a road mine near Ramle.

A British military office in Haifa was bombed during the night and an army camp near Hadera was the target of a "small scale" attack. British authorities said, but no casualties were reported in these incidents.

In the sectors of Jerusalem and the coastal plain where the British proclaimed martial law over the week-end the situation was reported quiet.

In the Jewish city of Tel Aviv, which is within the martial law zone, all banks remained closed this morning and a joint statement said they lacked currency to operate. Approximately $4,000,000 was reported withdrawn yesterday by residents who apparently feared an official closing.

The banks said they would reopen tomorrow if military authorities permitted currency to be brought from Jerusalem.

The Jewish underground's assertion that "open warfare" exists in Palestine brought from Lt. Gen. G.

H. A. MacMillan a quick statement that "there is no question of the army being at war with the Jewish population or anyone else in Palestine. The function of the army is to assist the police in maintaining law and order, as the police force alone is insufficient in present circumstances," MacMillan said in an address to his headquarters staff.

DISPLAY NEW 'MAGIC BRAIN'

New York, March 4 (P)—A new electronic "magic brain," described as capable of "remembering" a thousand 10-digit numbers (billions), got its first public demonstration Monday at the annual convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Known as EDVAC (electronic discrete variable computer) the new computing device developed by the University of Pennsylvania for the U. S. Army can add 10-digit numbers in 32-millionths of a second and multiply them in one-thousandth of a second.

It does the job ten times faster than ENIAC, which was produced here to help solve mathematical problems of the atomic bomb. "ENIAC" is electrical numerical integrator and computer.

T. Kite Sharpless, technical director of the research staff of Penn's Moore School of Electrical Engineering, which built EDVAC, explained in Philadelphia last night that 10-digit numbers such as this—1,234,567,890—are transformed into electrical impulses and fed into a mercury tube spaced one-millionth of a second apart.

They travel through the mercury

Reorganize To Speed Desilting

Harrisburg, March 4 (P)—A reorganization of the State Department of Forests and Waters got under way today to speed up Pennsylvania's stream cleanup program.

Secretary M. F. Draemel appointed Carl C. Tinstman, of Forty-Fort, as deputy secretary and named two bureau chiefs, James N. Morton, Ful-at the speed of sound. As the impulses reach the opposite end of the tube they are transformed back into electrical pulses, returned to the beginning and fed in again. EDVAC has 3,000 tubes; ENIAC 18,000.

Sharpless said the effect for skilled technical operators of EDVAC is to create "a memory storage tank" from which the numbers can be extracted when needed in the solving of long and difficult problems.

OFFERS BILL TO BAR STRIKES IN UTILITIES

Harrisburg, March 4 (P)—Legislation authorizing the governor to seize and operate a utility in Pennsylvania threatened with a strike or lockout went before a Senate committee today.

The measure, designed to prevent strikes such as the Pittsburgh power walkout recently, provides that when negotiations between a utility and the union break down, either side may notify the governor, who shall request submission of the dispute to arbitration. Either side may refuse.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. A. Evans Kephart (R-Phila.) would then provide that notice be given of a planned strike or lockout with a five-week "waiting period." During that interval the measure would permit the commonwealth to approach any employees and request them to work for the state. Should essential workers refuse, the commonwealth would be authorized to employ other persons.

"No labor union or labor organization," the bill stated, "shall discipline or expel from membership any member of such organization for agreeing to render, or rendering service to the commonwealth in the operation of any utility under provisions of this act."

Both House and Senate marked time, generally, while awaiting Governor Duff's budget message, due next Monday.

GIRL, 20, KILLED

student at Kutztown Teachers' college, to a college dance.

Coroner Bishop said following an autopsy Sunday afternoon that no inquest would be held because the death apparently was accidental since the condition of the road was bad and no negligence was shown on the part of either young Stipple or the other driver, Merkel Ristine, of Coatesville.

Three Others Injured
Young Stipple suffered fractured ribs, body bruises and an injured back. He, too, was taken to Memorial hospital and later discharged.

In addition to her parents, Miss Meisenhelter is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ralph Wood, York; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Rosa Kunkel, of Dover, and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Meisenhelter, of Landisville, Pa.

She was graduated in 1942 as an honor student from North York high school. Previously she attended East Berlin high school.

Funeral services at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Max G. Anstine funeral home, 1701 West Market street, York, with Rev. Robert Thoma, pastor of Heidelberg church, officiating. Interment in Greenmount cemetery.

LIONS POSTPONE

club could act in the matter and conform with its established "hands off" rule on all things involving partisan politics.

Some Lions insisted the issue was social and economic and not political and therefore a proper question for club action. Others held it is a political issue or "could easily become one." The result was that the clubmen directed their secretary, Robert M. Smith, to ask instructions from Lions International on the propriety of possible club action.

Add New Member
The merits of the bill were not debated with Doctor Bream suggesting that, if such a discussion were desired, it be listed as the program for a later meeting.

At the request of Lions International, President Milton R. Remmel appointed a club committee on the United Nations. To the committee he named Dr. Dwight F. Putman, Ralph E. Barley and Sterling Muselman.

Howard Gaines was received as a new member of the club and was presented with a membership pin.

See Science Film
President Remmel announced that District 14C of which the local club is a part will be visited by the president of Lions International April 8. The visit will be made with the Lewistown club as host. Ten reservations are available to the local club.

Lion Richard Warren showed a motion picture film on scientific progress titled "On to Jupiter." The film forecast great scientific progress and predicted interplanetary transportation and high speed travel on vast superhighways using bridges spanning lakes and deserts and similar natural barriers.

About 70 Lions attended the meeting which was held at the Shetter House.

say that we could not take any more students, or enlarge our facilities. The boys coming home from war were promised an opportunity for an education. Gettysburg was the first in the state to offer to increase its enrollment 50 per cent. The government brought barracks here for married couples, and four dormitories, each housing 50 boys, as well as an infirmary and recreation building.

"The college, not knowing that the federal government had not asked for permits for their construction, is now asking for these permits of an emergency nature, terminating when the student emergency is over. This should be by 1957."

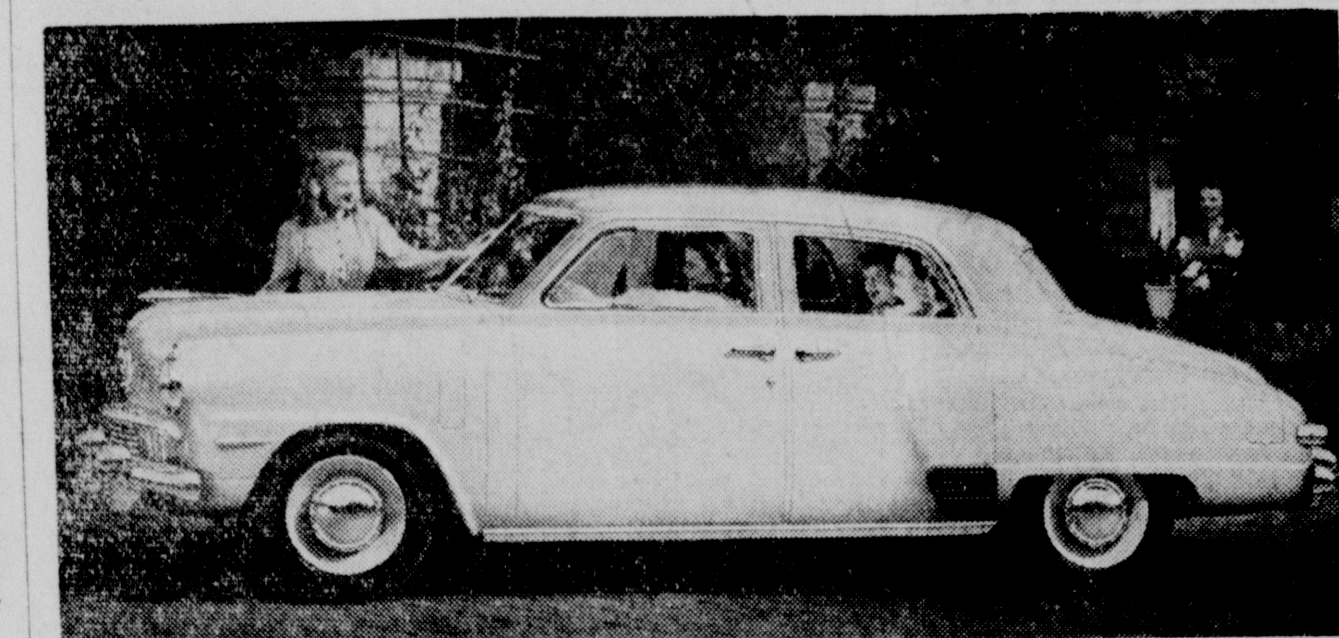

The council's action provides that the temporary buildings must be removed on or before January 1, 1957.

STALIN QUILTS AS MINISTER OF ARMED FORCES

London, March 4 (P)—Prime Minister Stalin has stepped out as minister of Soviet armed forces because of the "excessive pressure of his main work," the Moscow radio says, and has handed the job on to Gen. Nikolai A. Bulganin, who is regarded as one of Russia's most skilled administrators.

Unofficial Russian sources in London said they saw no reason to suppose that last night's announcement of the change meant anything but what it said—that the pressure of other work forced Stalin to lay aside the job of running the armed forces, now in the midst of demobilization.

It was the second such change in the Moscow government within a week. Col. Gen. Andrei A. Zhdanov was relieved of his post as chairman of the council of the union of the supreme Soviet at his own request last Tuesday because of the "pressure of work connected with his main duties." The council of the union is the smaller of the two houses of Russia's parliament.

Still Prime Minister
Stalin continues as prime minister, as head of the powerful politburo and of the orgburo—supervising organization of the Communist party and as a member of the presidium of the supreme Soviet—an executive and directive body of the parliament.

Stalin, who is 67 years old, had held the post for six years—all through the war—and has repeatedly been reported ill since the end of hostilities. Moscow observers, however, have described him in normal good health for a man of his age.

Bulganin has been the chief minister in the ministry of armed forces since March 22, 1946. He had served as vice prime minister of the Soviet Union and also as prime minister of the Russian Soviet federal socialist republic.

CLOSE CALL

New York, (P)—Not even James A. Callahan, acting chief inspector of the division of combustibles, cares to speculate as to what might have happened if 200 gallons of gasoline, accidentally pumped into an apartment oil furnace tank, had reached the furnace.

Eleven families evacuated when the fuel delivery man discovered his mistake waited today for Callahan to complete final tests and let them return to their apartments in the four-story building.

EARTH TO THE MOON

By Jules Verne

AP Newsfeature

Chapter 27

What curve would the projectile follow? was their hobby. One maintained the hyperbola, the other the parabola. They gave each other reasons bristling with x. Their arguments were couched in language which made Michel jump. The discussion was hot, and neither would give up his chosen curve to his adversary.

This scientific dispute lasted so long that it made Michel very impatient.

"Now, gentlemen, cosines, will you cease to throw parabolas and hyperbolas at each other's heads? I want to understand the only interesting question in the whole affair. We shall follow one or other of these curves? Good. But where will they lead us to?"

"Nowhere," replied Nicholl.

"How, nowhere?"

"Evidently," said Barbicane, "they are open curves, which may be prolonged indefinitely."

"Ah, savants!" cried Michel; "and what are either the one or the other to us from the moment we know that they equally lead us into infinite space?"

Barbicane and Nicholl could not forbear smiling. They had just been creating "art for art's sake." Never had so idle a question been raised at such an inopportune moment. The sinister truth remained that, whether hyperbolically or parabolically borne away, the projectile would never again meet either the earth or the moon.

What would become of these bold travelers in the immediate future? If they did not die of hunger, if they did not die of thirst, in days when the gas failed, they would die from want of air, unless the cold had killed them first. Still, important as it was to economize the gas, the excessive loss of the surrounding temperature obliged them to consume a certain quantity. Strictly speaking, they could do without it, but not without its heat. Fortunately the calorific generated by Reiser's and Regnaut's apparatus raised the temperature of the interior of the projectile a little, and without much expenditure they were able to keep it bearable.

But observations had now become very difficult. The dampness of the projectile was condensed on the windows and congealed immediately. This cloudiness had to be dispersed continually. In any case they might hope to be able to discover some phenomena of the highest interest.

But the projectile was now describing in the shadow that incalculable course which no sight-mark would allow them to ascertain. Had its direction been altered, either by the influence of the lunar attraction, or by the action of some unknown star? Barbicane could not say. But a change had taken place in the relative position of the vehicle; and Barbicane verified it about four in the morning.

Neither of the travelers thought of taking an instant's repose. Each one watched for an unexpected fact, which might throw some new light on their unanalogous studies. About five o'clock, Michel Ardan distributed, under the name of dinner, some pieces of bread and cold meat, which were quickly swallowed without either of them abandoning their scuffle, the glass of which was incessantly encrusted by the condensation of vapor.

Such was the conclusion which Barbicane very justly drew from facts already observed, a conviction which his two friends shared with him.

"And when arrived at this dead point, what will become of us?" asked Michel Ardan.

"We don't know," replied Barbicane.

"But one can draw some hypotheses, I suppose?"

"Two," answered Barbicane; "either the projectile's speed will be insufficient, and it will remain forever immovable on this line of double attraction—"

"I prefer the other hypothesis."

About forty-five minutes past five in the evening, Nicholl, armed with his glass, sighted toward the southern border of the moon, and in the direction followed by the projectile, some bright points cut upon the dark shield of the sky. They looked like a succession of sharp points lengthened into a tremulous line. They were very bright. Such appeared the terminal line of the moon when in one of her octants.

They could not be mistaken. It was no longer a simple meteor. This luminous ridge had neither color nor motion. Nor was it a volcano in eruption. And Barbicane did not hesitate to pronounce upon it.

"The sun!" he exclaimed.

"What! The sun?" answered Nicholl and Michel Ardan.

"Yes, my friends, it is the radiant orb itself lighting up the summit of the mountains situated on the southern borders of the moon. We see the evidently near the south pole."

"After having passed the north pole," replied Michel. "We have made the circuit of our satellite, then?"

"Yes, my good Michel."

"Then, no more hyperbolas, no more parabolas, no more open curves to fear?"

"No, but a closed curve."

"Which is called—"

"An ellipse. Instead of losing itself in interplanetary space, it is probable that the projectile will describe an elliptical orbit around the moon."

"Indeed!"

"And that it will become her satellite."

"Moon of the moon!" cried Michel Ardan.

"Only, I would have you observe, my worthy friend," replied Barbicane, "that we are none the less lost for that."

"Yes, in another manner, and much more pleasantly," answered the careless Frenchman with his most amiable smile.

Chapter 28

For a long time Barbicane and his companions looked silently and sadly upon that world which they had only seen from a distance, as Moses saw the land of Canaan, and which they were leaving without a possibility of ever returning to it. The projectile's position with regard to the moon had altered, and the base was now turned to the earth.

In watching the course of the projectile they could see that on leaving the moon it followed a course analogous to that traced in approaching her. It was describing a very long ellipse, which would most likely extend to the point of equal attraction, where the influences of the earth and its satellite are neutralized.

Such was the conclusion which Barbicane very justly drew from facts already observed, a conviction which his two friends shared with him.

Your Income Tax Return

VETERANS AND SERVICEMEN
(Editor's note: This is the eighth of 12 stories explaining who must do what about his income tax return.)

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, March 4 (AP)—The pay of enlisted men in the armed services is tax-free. Don't report it. It's tax free dating back to January 1, 1941. It will remain so until the war officially has been declared over.

If you've paid any tax on enlisted pay since 1941, ask the Internal Revenue collector for a refund. Do so on form 843.
Any enlisted man who received $500 or more civilian income in those years going back to 1941 must file a return on it, just as any civilian would have to do.

There's a difference with commissioned officers:

The first $1,500 of their service pay is tax free dating back to January 1, 1943, and doesn't have to be reported.

With the first $1,500 tax free, they don't have to report any additional service pay unless it is $500 or more. So commissioned officers don't have to file a return on their service pay unless it was more than $1,999.99. For example:

An officer received $1,900 service pay and $100 civilian income from dividends on stocks.

He forgets the first $1,500 of service pay but must report the next $400 plus the $100 in dividends, since the total income over $1,500 was $500.

Tax-exempt Income
Here is tax-exempt government pay—which doesn't have to be reported—to servicemen, veterans and their families:

Federal mustering out pay; state bonuses to veterans; all benefits under the GI Bill of Rights, such as for education and subsistence; terminal pay; government contributions to family allowances and to dependents; disability pay; disability retirement pay for service connected disability; allowances for uniforms, subsistence, traveling, quarters; pensions to veterans or their families for war services.

Check further—if you must file a return—on the various items a serviceman can deduct or need not report.

Here's a point for a serviceman's wife to remember:

If her husband, because his service pay is all exempt, is not filing a return but she is, because she has civilian income of $500 or more, she can claim him as an exemption.

Other Information

Suppose you, a parent, support a daughter whose husband is in service and who sends her some of his service pay. Can you, in making your return, claim her as a dependent? Yes, so long as she did not have $500 or more civilian income of her own.

Here are points for veterans and servicemen who have to file a return:

If you've been regularly stationed in the United States and are here March 15—the date for civilian filing—you must file.

If you've been overseas, or on sea duty, you can file a return 5½ months after the month of your return. But you can get the full payment delayed this way:

By applying in writing to the collector to whom the tax is due. Usually the law permits payment, without interest, in 12 quarterly installments over a three-year period. Application must be made within six months of discharge.

A question like this comes up: I'm a veteran. I was an enlisted man. I was discharged in June, 1946. Do I have to file a return?

You file no return on the service pay for those first six months of 1946

P.T.A. MEETING IS HELD SUNDAY AT EMMITSBURG

A meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association of St. Joseph's high school, Emmitsburg, was held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the high school auditorium. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leonard Sanders. Prayer was given by Sister Josephine, principal. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Bernard Boyle. There was no report by the treasurer.

All new members were welcomed to the Association. The president gave a short talk on the developments of the Association since its inauguration on February 2. Mrs. Henry Gerken, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, announced that a special meeting was held on February 16th in the school hall, at which meeting were the following: Leonard Sanders, Charles Hobbs, Prof. Richard McCullough, Prof. Dominic Greco and Mr. Quinn Topper, to offer their advice on an athletic field and other athletic advantages for the students. Mrs. Gerken announced that permission has been received from the Provincial, Father O'Leary of St. Vincent's seminary, Germantown, which Seminary owns the ground in the rear of the school, that it may be used for a baseball field and other activities usual to a high school.

A motion was made by Mrs. Guy A. Baker that an advisory committee composed of men be appointed to help the club carry out various projects.

Program Committee
Mrs. Floyd C. Miller made a motion that a program committee be appointed to take care of activities which will be interesting to the members of the club. The committee was selected with Mrs. Clarence Wachter as chairman and assistants, Mrs. Guy Baker, Mrs. Richard Rohrbaugh and Mrs. Charles Arnold of Taneytown.

The principal of the school spoke to the parents advising them that an athletic instructor for the boys would have to be acquired, which instructor would also be asked to teach in the workshop which is to be prepared for the 16 boys attending the high school. The parents were also informed that the caps and gowns to be worn at the coming commencement exercises would be rented from a firm in Baltimore. They were also informed that if they wished class rings for the children who will graduate in June they are to advise the principal at an early date. It was also stated that a radio broadcast would be given on March 12 over the Frederick station between 4:30 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon by the students of the school. To date cars will be furnished by Mrs. Leonard Sanders, Mrs. Bernard Boyle and F. C. Miller to transport the children, wishing to take part in this broadcast, to and from Frederick.

A motion was made that the annual dues for members of the club be set at $1.00.

Next Meeting April 13
The next regular meeting of the association will be held on April 13 due to Easter falling on the first Sunday of the month.

Refreshments were served by the home economics class to about 50 which included quite a number of fathers who were present for the meeting.

The names of the following men—or any government benefits since—but in between June, 1946, and December 31, 1946, you had as much as $500 civilian income, you must file a return.

On Center Square numbers from 1 to 100 will be used for each 12½ feet, starting at the east building line of Carlisle street and extending clockwise around the square.

An ordinance directing the Metropolitan Edison company to install 20 additional street lights and 6,502 feet of line was adopted.

A letter was received from the Pennsylvania Department of Highways informing council that application must be made for traffic signals, after which a survey will be conducted by the department to determine the need before they may be installed.

The proposal of Burgess C. A. Heiges that right turns be allowed on a red light at Chambersburg street and Buford avenue, and at Baltimore street and Steinwehr avenue, was referred to the highway committee.

Ask Digging Permits
Also referred to this committee was the question of allowing the gas company to make street excavations for the installation of new pipe lines to homes in the borough for gas furnaces.

The burgess said the gas company was prevented from installing gas furnaces by the refusal of the borough to allow the streets to be dug up. Borough Engineer LeRoy H. Winebrenner said that utility companies were required to make street installations last year before the state resurfaced the streets.

Installation of new catch basins at street intersections was recommended by Burgess Heiges, and referred to the highway committee.

Council voted to accept from H. M. Oyer a sewer line extending from Baltimore street to the Oyer property, and to extend it to the Donald Scott property in the rear of the Oyer home. It also agreed to lower a sewer in the alley adjoining the American Legion home, and extend a sewer from Chambersburg street to the Lloyd Gilbert property on South Franklin street.

Engineer Winebrenner was authorized to advertise for 1,000 tons of stone and 10,000 gallons of tar for highway use this spring and summer.

Gettysburg Lodge Of Fraternal Order Of Eagles Observes 40th Anniversary

GETTYSBURG AERIE No. 1562, Fraternal Order of Eagles was instituted here on January 29, 1907. With it, Gettysburg saw the fulfillment of the dream of a number of prominent and respected citizens of the community who foresaw the possibilities of a fraternal organization of this kind.

Seventy-eight Eagles became charter members of the new aerie here. The principals of the order, "Liberty, Truth, Justice and Equality," did much to influence those who became the first members of the organization in Gettysburg. They saw in the fundamentals the essential qualities that were the foundation upon which this country was laid, and they were satisfied that these principles would survive and that an order founded upon them would continue and grow with the years.

Enthusiastic Beginning
Little difficulty was encountered in securing a sufficient number of charter members to institute the lodge. Those who conceived the idea of the aerie here said that others approached upon the subject expressed enthusiasm and declared their willingness to do everything within their power to aid the birth of the aerie and help in its growth.

The work begun prior to the actual institution of the aerie went forward in good stride, and establishment of the order here was assured. Plans for the institution of the aerie proceeded with alacrity. Representatives of the grand lodge assisted wherever possible.

Initiated Charter Members
On March 7, 1907, seventy-eight charter members were initiated into the order. The degree team from the Hanover aerie was in charge with national officers and many dignitaries from other aeries throughout the country in attendance. It was an auspicious beginning, and Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562 was given added impetus through its first representative showing. The enthusiasm was widespread and reached into every section of the county. Long before the charter was granted, many applications had been received for membership, and a second class was well under way before the charter members were initiated.

The lodge was instituted in St. Francis Xavier hall, High street. The first president was George F. Young, who died while in office. Members of the degree team from the Hanover aerie impressed national officers with the performance of their duties relative to the institution of the lodge.

Buy Home In 1914
The first quarters were established in the old Ephraim Minnigh building, now occupied by the Blue Perrot tea room. The aerie remained in these quarters until 1909, when it moved to the building now occupied by the Gettysburg shoe shining parlor. In 1914 the aerie purchased the present home of the lodge on Chambersburg street from Miss Ella Toot for $6,500. Extensive improvements were made and others have followed, which make the lodge quarters among the best in this section.

The aerie grew steadily. Its membership took an active part in fraternal and community affairs. One of the features of the Eagles is the provision for sick benefits, and this feature made a lasting impression upon the membership and prospective membership.

There has been a steady, and in many respects, remarkable growth in membership since the formative years of the aerie, until today the Eagles in Gettysburg boast of a membership of more than 1,400 persons from all walks of life, serving together and enjoying the fruits of the lodge's principles.

Is Non-Sectarian
The fraternal orders of Eagles, according to its constitution, is non-sectarian and does not interest itself, as a lodge, in any form of politics. Politics is not discussed in any open meeting, thus preventing the lodge from participating in elections of any kind.

Old age pensions are an important clause in the constitution of the F.O.E. The order stresses this point upon every occasion and it has been a boon to its steady growth throughout the country.

Mother's day, one of the most popular days of observance, was recognized by the Eagles before any other lodge in the country. The lodge gave its approval to such a day, and endorsed this move to honor mothers.

The charitable work of the order has had a far-reaching effect. Families in need, whether the head of the family was an Eagle or not, have received the helping hand.

Lodge Benefits
Sick benefits of the order include $1 a day for 84 days after the first seven days of illness. That is, any

James B. Aumen Has Served Local Lodge Of Eagles As Treasurer For 37 Consecutive Years; Active In Many Community Affairs

James B. Aumen has been an active member of the Gettysburg Lodge of Eagles ever since its founding on January 29, 1907. One of the 78 charter members he is now one of the eight living founders still affiliated with Lodge No. 1562. From its inception he has, unquestionably, been the local lodge's most active and influential members.

For the past 37 years Mr. Aumen has been Secretary of Gettysburg Lodge and he has been the moving force in watching the growth of the order here from its original 78 members to more than 1,400 at the present time.

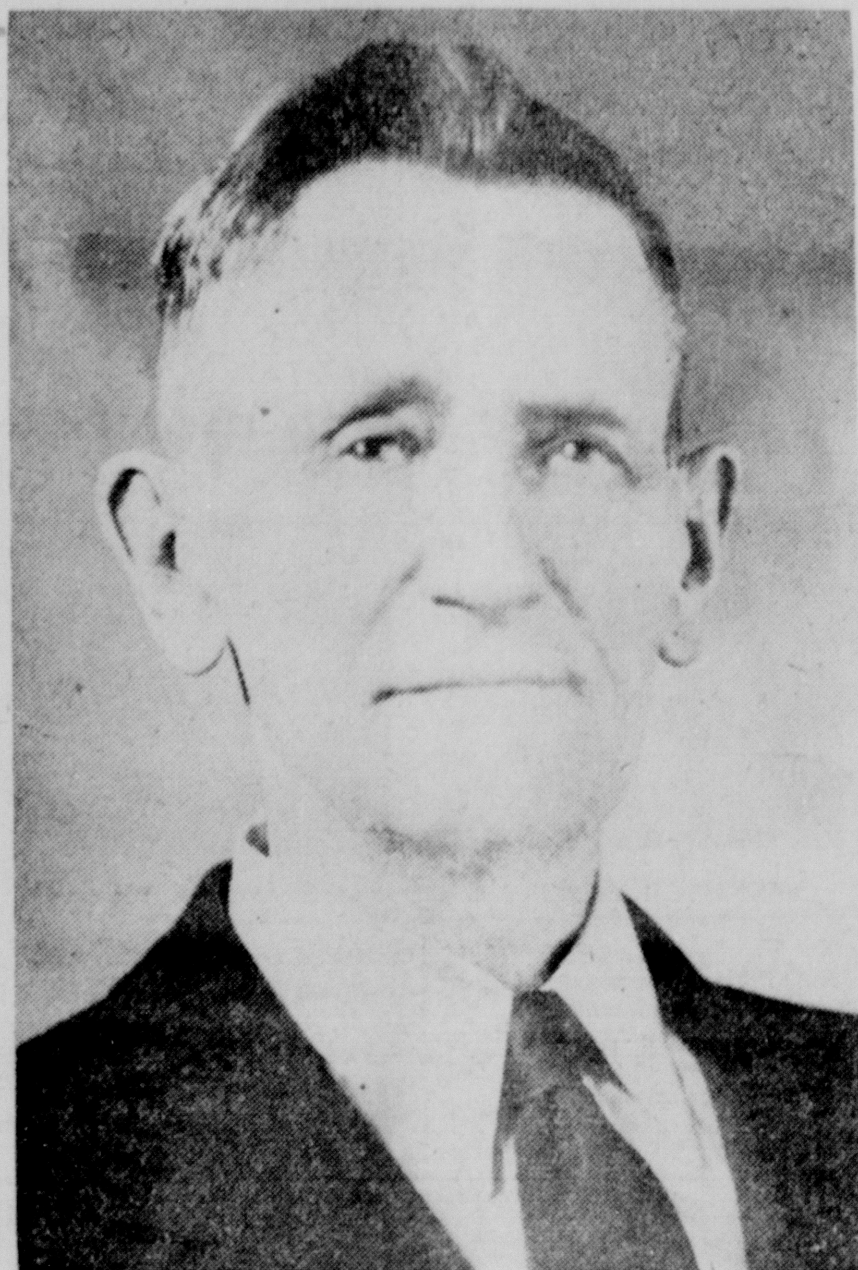

Born In County
Mr. Aumen was born in Germany township and has always resided in Adams county. In 1885, at the age of 13, he moved to Gettysburg with his parents. Throughout his life he has been active in community and fraternal affairs.

He was first elected Secretary of the local lodge 37 years ago. On three occasions he had opposition for re-election, once winning by a margin of 12 votes. Since that time he has been successively re-elected 34 times without opposition, a distinction few secretaries of subordinate lodges can claim.

He helped enroll the largest classes initiated into the order and was influential in the development of the state organization. He is a life member of the Grand Aerie and for nine years served on the state finance committee. In 1931, after serving through all the chairs, he was elected President of the State Association.

Three Aeries In County
It was through his initiative and enterprise that the local order increased its membership to the largest fraternal order in the county. Two other Aeries are located in the county, both of which were founded with the assistance of Mr. Aumen. His services to the county and community have been varied. In addition to his long affiliation with the Eagles "Jim" is a member of the Sons of Veterans, Order of Independent Americans, the Moose lodge of McSherrystown, Gettysburg fire pany, Southeastern Firemen's Association and the State Firemen's Association which organization he has served as treasurer for fourteen years. He is serving his eighth year as Adams County probation officer.

other feature of the Eagles. Provision is also made for the services of a physician for members and their families. The local lodge was incorporated in the fall of 1907, with James B. Aumen, A. M. Becker and Charles Strausbaugh as incorporators. With its large membership, the aerie on many occasions entertains vast throngs which tax the present quarters to fullest capacity, and proposals to expand have been discussed, but have not yet reached definite stages.

Prepare Banquets
The home on Chambersburg street at the present time contains a large office in front on the ground floor, a grill room, with a recently remodeled bar 64 feet in length, and a large kitchen, 25 feet by 15 feet with adjoining storage room. This enables the lodge to do its own catering, and hundreds have been served in the room of the second floor at the many banquets and other affairs held by the lodge.

The grill room, in addition to the bar, contains tables, games, a pool table and other facilities for the comfort of the members. At one end of the grill are the lavatories. The second floor contains the main banquet hall. Adjoining this hall, through large French doors, is a smaller dining room. Both can be thrown together for the larger affairs frequently held at the home.

Pension For Veterans
The main hall is 25 feet in width and 90 feet in length with a parlor 16 feet by 24 feet. The lodge room is on the third floor. All the rooms are attractively finished, the plaster walls painted in light shades and modern electrical fixtures provide good illumination throughout. Stairs and woodwork are natural wood finish and mahogany. The floors are of highly polished maple.

"Jim" is also credited with doing more than any other one individual to develop and increase the number of fire companies throughout the county. He has served long and efficiently in many other efforts in Gettysburg and the county.

Active Firemen
Despite his advanced years, failing health and eyesight he continues to carry on his duties as secretary of the largest fraternal order in the county. Every morning he is at his office in the lodge home and when occasions arise he is available at other times during the day or evening.

The Fortieth anniversary of the institution of the local Eagles, being observed this week, is, in a measure, a tribute to the ingenuity and tireless efforts of its 37-term secretary, "Jim" Aumen.

C. David McCullough, president of Gettysburg aerie, was elected vice president in June, 1946, and became president of the aerie in November, 1946, upon the resignation of President Russell Staley. He is a native of Gettysburg, and has been a member of the aerie for the past two years.

The Eagles have taken good care of their members who have served in the wars of this country. World War I and World War II, and their families.

When World War I enmeshed the country, the Eagles adopted a resolution which provided for the establishment of a pension fund for veterans who made the supreme sacrifice. The fund was raised through ten per cent subscriptions from members. Each member was assessed ten cents a month to provide for the fulfillment of this resolution. Every Eagle accepted the assessment without a murmur of dissent, and the necessary money was quickly raised with an over-subscription that startled even the most optimistic member of the order.

Pay 17,000 Claims
The family of every Eagle who lost his life during World War I received $1,000, the amount fixed in this special fund resolution. There were 17,000 claims paid.

After World War I, the Eagles continued to grow in membership. By 1927, when it celebrated its 20th anniversary, it had a membership of 341. At the present time there are nearly 1,500 members. Many improvements have been made to the home on Chambersburg street in recent years. The aerie has assets, including its home, and bonds, worth more than $100,000.

One hundred and sixty-four members of the aerie answered the call to arms and served their country during World War II. Two of them made the supreme sacrifice, A. B. Erlain, who died in service and Harry Jeffcoat, killed in action.

Future Objectives
National, state and local committees were named after the close of World War II to plan programs to aid the returning servicemen. The order has not lost interest in the cause of old age pensions, and social security since it succeeded in having laws passed to provide for these things. National, state and local committees study administration of these laws constantly, and now are fighting for liberation of them, and extension of benefits of the laws to millions of persons not now covered by them.

A job at a saving wage for every man willing and able to work is another objective of the F.O.E. The principle of the guaranteed annual wage as one means of attaining this objective, was approved at the last national convention. The youth guidance committee of the grand aerie is drafting a youth program. In connection with mothers' pensions, old age pensions, workmen's compensation and similar social legislation, youth work, and its humanitarian program, the Fraternal Order of Eagles need neither to defend its record nor to seek credit. Its activities are well-recognized and have been praised by men in every rank of public life.

Charles W. Myers Was First Treasurer

Charles W. Myers, agent of the Western Maryland railroad in Gettysburg, was the first treasurer of Gettysburg aerie of Eagles. He served in this office from the time the lodge was instituted until December 30, 1909, when he was succeeded by M. E. Long, who served until January 1, 1911, when he passed away. Treasurer Long was succeeded by Irvin Kelly, who in turn was succeeded by D. C. Stallsmith. E. P. Wisotzky was the treasurer, serving from January 1, 1917, until January 7, 1919, when William Adair was elected. John E. Storm, present treasurer, was elected in 1941.

Since the birth of Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562, Fraternal Order of Eagles in 1907, the order has had 29 presidents, beginning with George F. Young, who was the first head of the organization here. His sudden and untimely passing on October 18, 1907, marked the first death among the members of the newly-formed lodge. He was succeeded by F. B. Slonaker. C. David McCullough is the present head of the lodge.

Eagles' presidents, from the granting of the charter, to the present time, are:

*George F. Young

Mervin E. Crouse
W. D. Sterner
*H. E. Weaver
Charles McKenrick
James A. Aumen
Ira L. Williams

William Kalbfleisch Was First Secretary

The first secretary of the Eagles in Gettysburg was William H. Kalbfleisch, who was elected to this office when the order was established in 1907. He served one term. He was succeeded by Donald C. Stallsmith, who served until 1910, when H. G. Williams was elected and served until October 21, 1910. James B. Aumen was elected in that year and has held the office continuously since that date.

Harvey A. Yingst
Charles Yingling

Several presidents served two or more terms in office, some consecutively. The late Frank B. Slonaker was president in 1908, and again in 1915. C. Tyson Tipton headed the aerie in 1910, in 1912 and in 1928. M. F. Williams was president in 1914 and 1917. James A. Aumen, Edward Culp, and others served more than one term.

Crippled Children Program Started With Mouth Organ

For want of a mouth organ, an Eagle program was born, a program that has brought happiness to the lives of many children who will never walk, run or know life as normal children do.

Maple Leaf Aerie No. 2311 adopted a program which had its origin when one of its members, Fred Mather, visited the Home for Incurable Children at Toronto, Canada. He played his mouth organ for them, and returned again and again when he discovered how much they enjoyed it. But he soon ran out of mouth organs. He told his brother about it, and it was brought to the attention of the aerie.

Led To Other Activities

The result has been that Maple Leaf Aerie has been buying mouth organs for the children for the past eight years. But this was only the beginning. Before long the aerie was giving an annual Christmas party. When harmonicas became scarce during the war, the Eagles took the children for 40 auto trips through the country around Toronto. Some of the children had never been in an automobile before.

Then gasoline rationing put a crimp in this activity. The Eagles began a variety of entertainment in the form of semi-annual shows. They promoted a hockey benefit plan. With the proceeds from the distribution of tickets they helped the children's home enlarge its recreation room.

Gave Them New Start

The aerie started a trust fund to help those of the home who were no longer children get starts in life in spite of their physical handicaps.

Three of the boys are nearly ready to leave. When they do, they will have their own businesses waiting for them, for other organizations as well as the Eagles have become interested.

Thanks to the Toronto Eagles incurable children will not become forgotten men in another institution, but will be able to take their places in the world.

FIRST PRESIDENT

George F. Young was the first president of Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562, Fraternal Order of Eagles. His sudden death on October 18, 1907, the first death in the aerie, removed one of its most active workers. Mr.

EAGLES ADOPT PENSION PLAN FOR EMPLOYEES

The Fraternal Order of Eagles, which worked to bring about workmen's compensations, widow's pensions, old age pensions, social security, youth centers, child health clinics, homes for aged, and other humanitarian aims, now has a project to provide pensions for its own employees.

An amendment to the Grand Aerie laws was adopted at the national convention of the order in Columbus, Ohio, last year, setting up the "employees' pension fund," to furnish "an orderly means for the retirement of faithful workers with long service, and to enable such employees to provide for themselves in their old age."

The pension fund is under the control and supervision of a board of pension trustees composed of five members, appointed by the grand worthy president of the order.

The board has the power to designate the eligibility and participation of employees and set up classes of employees in the pension plan. It will designate the amount each employee is to pay into the pension fund and amounts to be contributed by the grand aerie and subordinate aeries. It will pass upon all applications for annuities and benefits.

Shortly after passage of the amendment, a census of all secretaries and employees was taken by the chief auditor of the grand aerie to determine eligibility under the new pension plan.

EAGLES ACTIVE OVER 40 YEARS

"Forty years of Eagles' history in Gettysburg and Adams county has spelled not only an era of service to members of the local aerie, but of service to the community," said an officer of local lodge 1562.

"Fifteen-sixty-two has been in the forefront of every worthwhile movement here in these 40 years, for civic betterment and the good of the community, and has initiated many of these movements itself.

"It has supported morally and financially the numerous campaigns for funds, such as the Boy Scouts, the Red Cross and the YWCA. During the war years it invested hundreds of dollars of its money in war bonds to help promote the war effort. It contributed to the civic nursing program and helped financially with the recent fund-raising for additional school nurses.

The station of the president is shown in the background, facing the camera, and stations of other officers at left and right and in the foreground. ing the war years it invested hundreds of dollars of its money in war bonds to help promote the war effort. It contributed to the civic nursing program and helped financially with the recent fund-raising for additional school nurses.

"The aerie has participated in and contributed to Christmas parties for the children, Halloween celebrations and many other activities. At the close of World War II it provided a banquet for returned veterans and gave each one a gift."

EAGLES MADE AID TO NEEDY NATIONAL IDEA

When, in 1921, the Fraternal Order of Eagles launched its crusade for old-age pension, opponents saw in the plan all sorts of bogies from socialism to governmental bankruptcy, writes James W. Bryan, Jr., in the Eagles magazine. Time proved the error of their thinking, he adds.

Montana was the pathfinder, and Eagles blazed the trail. The pension bill was drafted by a young Eagle leader—Lester H. Loble, past worthy president of Helena Aerie, later to become Grand Worthy President—who had been elected to the state legislature on an old-age pension platform. Other Eagles helped to steer the measure to victory. On March 5, 1923, Gov. Joseph M. Dixon signed the first pension bill to become law in the United States. In that same year, Nevada, Pennsylvania, and Alaska passed pension bills.

In 1925, Wisconsin joined the pension states when Gov. John J. Blaine signed the Eagle-sponsored bill and commended the F.O.E.

The seed continued to produce—in Kentucky (1926); in Colorado and Maryland (1927); in Wyoming, Minnesota, Utah, and California (1929).

Roosevelt Helped Cause
The year 1930 brought a powerful ally—Franklin D. Roosevelt—to the pension cause. Then governor of New York, he led the victorious campaign for the security of the needy aged in his state. And, as he affixed his signature to the pension bill, he declared: "Most of the credit for showing the need of old-age pensions is due—and will be given—to the F.O.E. They started this nation-wide movement and it is because of their continued efforts that the idea has been brought to the attention of the people in the various states."

That was the year, too, in which the pension pace quickened, with Massachusetts, Delaware, Idaho, West Virginia, New Jersey, and New Hampshire passing pension legislation.

The landslide came in 1933. Washington led off, followed by 16 more states and the Territory of Hawaii. In 1935, before passage of the Federal Social Security Act, four additional states passed pension laws, bringing the total to 32 states and two territories. . . . pioneers, led by the F.O.E., that prepared the way for federal legislation to help the aged.

That year, in August, President Roosevelt signed the Social Security Bill, bringing to fulfillment the idea first proposed by the Eagles in 1921. . . . "to take such action as will awaken public sentiment to the wisdom of state and federal provisions that shall remove from the minds of the workers of the land the haunting fear of want and pauperism in old age." Commending our Fraternity, of which he was a life member, President Roosevelt said: "I have long observed with satisfaction the sponsorship by the F.O.E. of social justice legislation both in the states and in the nation. . . . Our countrymen owe the Eagles much good will for their unselfish services."

INTERNATIONAL PICNIC

More than 5,500 Eagles and their families participated last fall in the first annual International Picnic sponsored jointly by Bellingham, Wash., Aerie No. 31, Vancouver, B. C., Aerie No. 2075, and New Westminster, B. C., Aerie No. 20. The picnic was held at Blaine, Wash., near the International Peace Arch on the boundary line between the United States and Canada.

FIRST EAGLES
DREW SNEERS
FROM CITIZENS

Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562, Fraternal Order of Eagles, was instituted here just nine years after the first lodge was set up at Seattle, Wash. The "Eagle," official publication of the F.O.E. in its February, 1947 issue, gave this interesting account of the birth of the organization:

"Forty-nine years ago this month, six men sat on a lumber pile in a Seattle shipyard and formed the organization that became known as the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

"All six were in the theatrical business. In those days, the theatre, like dancing and playing cards, was considered to be in league with the devil. So the solid citizens of Seattle must have wondered, 'What kind of an organization will this be, that is founded by theatrical people?'

"The tiny society grew and prospered. Its lodges accepted into membership men who sold beer and liquor for a living. 'What kind of fraternity would take in a bartender?' sneered the critics.

Scoffers Still Talk

"Still the infant fraternity grew stronger, accepting into its ranks the men who had come from the white-pine country to topple the tall trees of the Pacific Northwest. 'Canucks and Micks and snuff-chewing Swedes,' said the scoffers. 'Who ever heard of letting lumberjacks with their calked boots walk across lodge floors?'

"But Eagle aeries continued to sprout in the corn and cotton country, on iron ranges, in the coal country on prairies and plains, in farm towns and factory towns. 'Did you know that the Eagles let miners in?' politely queried the members of the lifted eyebrows set, 'and that men in barnyard boots or with grease on their hands can sit in an Eagle meeting?'

"That was a long time ago, or so it seems. Much change has come in 49 years. Seattle itself has changed from a lusty, brawling jumping-off spot for the Klondike to the modern metropolis pictured above. The Fraternal Order of Eagles has become a great cross-section of our population.

Skeptics Get Answer

"Four presidents of the United States have been life members of the order. Cabinet members, Supreme Court justices, G-men and clergymen, businessmen, lawyers, doctors and professional men are Eagles today. Today the order has well over one million members and is the fastest growing fraternal order in the world.

"The cynics and skeptics have their answer now. The faith of the men who founded our order has been justified. It is possible to build an organization that will represent rich and not so rich, successful and not so successful, lucky and not so lucky. Bankers and barbers, ranchers and railroaders, merchants and miners, farmers and factory workers as fraternal equals in an Eagle hall.

"Pooling their energies and loyalties, they have worked together to bring America humanitarian legislation such as workmen's compensation, widows' allowances acts, old-age pensions and the Social Security Act. Together they have sponsored youth centers, child-health clinics, co-operative homes for the aged, contributed to worthwhile community undertakings.

A Better America

"America is the better because they worked together. It is to the glory of the United States and Canada that these twin commonwealths have given so many folks the chance to belong, to be somebody. It is to the glory of the Eagles that it has been given the chance for fraternalism to so many people.

"In his greatest speech, the one he wrote but did not live to deliver, an American president said, 'We are faced with the pre-eminent fact that, if civilization is to survive, we must cultivate the science of human relationships—the ability of all peoples of all kinds to live together in the same world at peace.' In a day when the world needs to learn more about the spirit of 'togetherness,' the 49th birthday of the fraternal organization that dared to dream the great American dream is not without significance."

Harry G. Curry, Frederick, Md., recently succeeded Howard H. Falconer as Director of Maryland's District No. 1.

Eagles Receive
Truman Message

President Harry S. Truman, a life member of Independence, Mo., Aerie, in a message to the 48th annual convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles at Columbus, Ohio, urged the Order to devote itself to special post-war tasks.

President Truman's message, addressed to Managing Organizer M. L. Brown, follows:

I wish it were possible to accept the invitation to attend your national convention to be held in Columbus, Ohio. Although I cannot be with you in person, I send hearty greetings and every good wish.

With victory ours, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, which supported the war effort so valiantly, can devote its energies to peaceful pursuits. We are learning the stern lesson that peace brings responsibilities no less heavy than the actual waging of war. Everywhere the work of reconversion and reconstruction must go forward. We all have a special duty toward our returned veterans. We must see to it, first of all, that they have jobs and suitable homes in which to live. We owe a special obligation to care for war widows and orphans. And ever and always we must work for an enduring peace.

I know that the Eagles throughout the country will rise to the opportunity for service which these strenuous days present.

FOUNDATION IS ESTABLISHED IN HONOR OF VETS

In honor of all Eagle servicemen and in memory of those members of the order who gave their lives in defense of their country, the grand aerie established the Fraternal Order of Eagles Memorial Foundation, income of which is dedicated and used in perpetuity for proving scholarships, primarily for children of Eagles who died while serving in the armed forces of the United States or Canada during World War II.

The Memorial Foundation is administered by a board consisting of 15 trustees, who receive funds and invest them and disburse the income for the payment of the scholarships and for charitable, educational, occupational training or benevolent purposes and activities, particularly among children of Eagles servicemen.

Gave $3,000 Here
Subordinate aeries throughout the United States and Canada and their auxiliaries have contributed many thousands of dollars to the memorial fund. Gettysburg aerie contributed $3,000, Littlestown $1,000 and McSherrystown $900.

When the war in Europe ended, more than 150,000 Eagles were in uniform in all branches of the armed services on every far flung battle front of the global war. Honor rolls in every aerie clubhouse bear their names. More than 4,000 Eagle members made the supreme sacrifice and thousands of others were wounded. Many scores wear decorations for valorous deeds in action. On the home front, aeries supported the war effort up to the hilt. They purchased more than 25 million dollars in war bonds, and in many communities, Aeries and Eagles spearheaded the war loan drives. Aeries organized blood donor groups, and participated in waste paper, tin and other salvage programs.

OVER MILLION MEMBERS

With a membership past the million mark, the Fraternal Order of Eagles is the largest benefit paying fraternal organization in America. Its tremendous growth is a monument to the vision of its founders and to the services it has rendered to its members, and the communities in which they live. A vital and moving force for security and brotherhood among men, the F.O.E. looks out upon a future as limitless as the horizon and as mighty as the destiny of America.

More than 130,000,000 blood donations were made in the United States during the war.

EAGLES LEAD IN BUILDING BETTER LIVES

In a comparatively short span of years the Eagles have contributed much to the upbuilding of an America and a Canada where liberty, tolerance, security and opportunity could be realities in the lives of men. It has been a benefactor to the widows, the crippled, the orphans, the aged and the not-so-lucky. It has advanced the economic well-being of average men and women and upheld the sanctity of the church, the home and family. It has sponsored social legislation and national observance that have given a fuller and richer life to all Americans.

Eagles sponsored and led the fight for the enactment of the first mothers' pension law in the history of America, the Missouri law.

An Eagle drafted and Eagles supported the first workmen's compensation act passed in any state in the union, the Wisconsin law.

Eagles led the crusade for state old age pension laws and the first state pension system, that of Montana, was introduced by an Eagle member legislator and signed by an Eagle governor.

Social Security

Eagles spent fourteen years campaigning for a national social security law and the President who signed the Social Security Act, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, gave the pen with which he signed the measure to the F.O.E. in recognition of its pioneering leadership.

An Eagle made the first known public plea for the observance of a national Mother's Day and the Order adopted the idea as a fraternal observance, long before Mother's Day

John E. Stelm, treasurer of Gettysburg Aerie, has been an Eagle since December 5, 1910, when he joined the McSherrystown aerie. He has lived in Gettysburg since July 7, 1917. He was elected treasurer of the local aerie in December, 1941, upon the retirement of the late William L. Adair, and has been re-elected each year since assuming the office.

became a national holiday.

Eagles played an important role in starting America's first Citizenship or "I am An American" Day, with Manitowoc, Wisconsin, as the locale of the first Citizenship Day program.

Eagles endorsed the principle of the guaranteed annual wage back in 1930 and are campaigning for a wider acceptance of the "52 pay-checks a year" employment guarantee.

Eagles originated the observance of June 20 as Emblem Day, making the adoption of the American bald eagle as the official emblem of our country.

Eagles, at the request of the sponsors of the measures, joined in the fight to secure enactment of the G. I. Bill of Rights, as a framework for future veterans' service legislation.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles has been a pioneer in movements that materially and spiritually enriched the lives of all citizens of two great democracies, the United States of America and the Dominion of Canada.

Brown Praises Eagle Workers

COLUMBUS, OHIO — Tribute to the 30,000 active Eagles workers and 150,000 producers was paid by Managing Organizer M. L. Brown in an address before the 48th annual Grand Aerie convention, and the prediction was made that with their help and that of a growing legion of Eagles aides the Order will achieve its 2,000,000 membership goal.

The managing organizer lauded the programs that were pending before the convention and said with their successful advancement, the Order will achieve results as worthwhile as those that marked the social legislation and other attainments of former years.
